SERVANTS OF VIENNA JEWS

ORDERED TO REGISTER.

During the next week all female Aryan domestic servants still serving Jewish employers in Vienna must present themselves at the police station of their district, and fill up forms with full details of themselves and their employment, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent.

There are still many hundreds of women in Vienna under 45 working in Jewish households. They are all offenders against the Nuremberg laws, though tolerated by the authorities, as time is required to find fresh employment for them.

ANXIOUS WEEK-END

HENLEIN'S THREE POSSIBLE COURSES

AND THEIR CRITICAL EFFECTS

RUNCIMAN PLAN IN RESERVE

Although in London to-day it was felt that the situation in Czecho-Slovakia was a little easier, some official statement on the conference between Herr Hitler and Herr Henlein, the Sudeten German leader, is awaited with anxiety, writes the Press Association Diplomatic correspondent.

GERMAN OFFICIAL CIRCLES DECLARE THAT NOTHING COULD BE MORE NATURAL THAN THAT HITLER SHOULD DESIRE TO HEAR OF THE LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN THE DISPUTE FROM HENLEIN HIMSELF, BUT—

IT IS STILL BELIEVED THAT HERR HITLER HOLDS THE KEY TO THE SITUATION.

BERLIN APPROVAL NEEDED.

The Sudeten leader himself is thought to favour the acceptance of the latest Czech proposal as a basis of negotiation, but he would require the German Government's approval of such an acceptance.

WHETHER HE RECEIVED AT BERCHTESGADEN HITLER'S CONSENT TO SUCH A COURSE IS NOT YET KNOWN.

WON'T TELL TILL TO-MORROW.

It now seems probable that Henlein will not reveal the instructions which he received from the German leader until to-morrow, shortly before his departure for the Nazi Conference at Nuremberg.

Herr Henlein may then announce that he has decided to adopt one of three courses. He may—

Accept the Czech proposals as a basis for negotiation,
Produce his own counter-proposals, or
Adhere to the full demands in his Carlsbad speech.

The first two possibilities would entail long and delicate negotiations and the third would produce an even more critical situation.

FOURTH POSSIBILITY.

There is, however, a fourth possibility, that—

THE RUNCIMAN MISSION IN THE EVENT OF A DEADLOCK OR BREAKDOWN OF THE PRESENT TALKS MIGHT PRODUCE ITS OWN PROPOSALS.

Lord Runciman remains a friend of both sides. He has worked incessantly and he is now in complete possession of the details of the situation and its complications. He would probably have the goodwill of both sides, and any plan he might produce would without doubt receive serious consideration.

LORD HALIFAX RETURNING

Lord Halifax, the Foreign Secretary, who went to Yorkshire early yesterday, will return to London to-morrow. He will be at the Foreign Office in order to maintain the closest touch with the situation.

The Prime Minister, who is in Scotland, will also be kept constantly informed of any developments.

Official circles in London were disposed to-day to await definite information regarding the Henlein interview with Herr Hitler before attempting to assess the effect of it upon the international situation.

The general feeling is that it is premature to form any decided views as to the effects of yesterday's events on the situation.

It was confirmed in London that before Herr von Ribbentrop went to Berchtesgaden he asked Sir Nevile Henderson, the British Ambassador in Berlin, to see him in his house on the outskirts of Berlin.

Sir Nevile conveyed no specific message from the British Government but was able to give the German Foreign Minister his impressions regarding the views held in London.

It was a general conversation and Sir Nevile was able to tell Herr von Ribbentrop the outcome of the meeting of Ministers in London on Tuesday,

"NO INFRINGEMENT OF INTEGRITY."

HENLEIN CARRIES HITLER'S REPLY

The Prague newspapers, fearing that concessions to the Sudeten Germans mean sacrifices by the Czechs, are somewhat pessimistic.

The nationalist organ "Azet," for example, says:—

"To recognise the Sudeten claims as genuine and well founded is to play the game of Hitler.

"Lidovo Noviny," organ of President Benes, says: "No force can make us accept any solution which will infringe our integrity, our independence, and our democracy."

Henlein's weekly, the "Rundschau," tells the Czechs that they have got to get off the high horse on to which they were helped by the Allies after the war and goes on to denounce "outrageous" lies carried by the foreign Press regarding the Sudeten attitude.

It finds difficulty in substantiating this attack and at the same time is very silent about the tactics of the German Press in magnifying every incident and vilifying the Czech Government.

LORD RUNCIMAN'S WEEK-END.

It is expected that Lord Runciman will spend the week-end with the Archbishop of Prague, Mgr. Kaspar. No meeting has been arranged till Monday, but it is not unlikely that he will see Herr Henlein, who is expected back at Asche to-day from Berchtesgaden.

Henlein is understood to be carrying Hitler's reply to the latest Czech proposals, the nature of which has not been disclosed by either the Czechs or the Germans. They are believed, however, to include "colonisation" or the division of the country into largely self-governing districts.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN EIRE.

The total registered unemployed in Eire for the week ending August 29 was officially stated to have been 70,552 as compared with 70,174 for the preceding week.

HITLER PLEBISCITE IDEA.

KEEPS LIBERTY OF ACTION.

PARIS, Saturday.—Reports that Hitler may ask for a plebiscite to determine the Sudeten problem are unfavourably received by the Paris Press to-day.

Describing such a course as a "trap," "Pertinax" writes in "Ordre":

"In Central and Eastern Europe a plebiscite would suffice to blow sky high all States opposing Pan-Germanism, and we have no guarantees that it would not be applied to Alsace-Lorraine—German territory between 1871 and 1919.

"The chances always are that Pan-Germanism will carry the day in a plebiscite, because the threat of force ready to strike acts in an irresistible way, and because Germany has a monopoly of this threat.

"Moreover, a plebiscite will never be imposed on Hitler's Reich under conditions in which there would be the risk of its not serving his interests."

In the "Figaro," Lucien Romier says Hitler does not promise not to bring help eventually to the Sudeten Germans. He keeps his liberty of action. This liberty allows him three final decisions—To intervene to protect a possible rebellion of the Sudeten Germans against the Czechs; to demand a plebiscite which would end in a rupture of the political and territorial unity of Czecho-Slovakia; or to propose, in the name of peace, a last-minute conciliation which would not leave too much bitterness in the minds of the Czechs and would favour their final agreement with greater Germany.—Reuter.

WORLD PRAYER DAY.

IDEA OF PREMIER LYONS.

"TIME TO TURN TO HIGHER POWER"

SYDNEY (N.S.W.), Saturday.—Welcoming delegates to-day at the opening ceremony of the second British Commonwealth Relations Conference, Mr. J. A. Lyons, Prime Minister, made a striking speech on world troubles.

"The time has come to turn to a Higher Power for guidance," he said.

On behalf of the Government of Australia, he suggested that all religions and denominations who were deeply concerned for peace, should set aside a day for prayer and intercession.

The supreme concern of British policy, he said, is, and always has been, to prevent a world war.

The conference, which is being held in the Sydney University, takes place behind closed doors.

It has been nicknamed "Empire Brain Trust"

Groups appointed by the institutes of international affairs in the United Kingdom and Eire, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and India are attending.

HIS FIVE-HOUR TALK.

FINAL PROPOSALS SUNDAY.

BENES DISCUSSION CONTINUES.

Herr Henlein, the Sudeten German leader, left Berchtesgaden for Prague on Friday evening after a consultation lasting five hours with Herr Hitler and Herr von Ribbentrop, the Foreign Minister.

An official communique issued in Berlin states that after the Sudeten German leader had made a full report Herr Hitler expressed himself "in complete agreement with his judgment of the situation."

He is expected to make his final counter-proposals to the Prague Government following a broadcast speech by President Benes and just before his own departure for the opening of the Nazi Party Congress at Nuremberg on Monday.

A member of Viscount Runciman's unofficial mediation mission will meet Herr Henlein immediately on his arrival in Prague and seek an account of the Berchtesgaden conference.

In London, where the situation is regarded as unchanged, a report on the latest developments is awaited, and the Prime Minister is being kept informed at Balmoral.

TRIANGULAR DISCUSSION.

The talks between Herr Hitler and Herr Henlein at Berchtesgaden began at 11-45 a.m. and lasted till 4-30, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent. Herr von Ribbentrop, the German Foreign Minister, was the only other person present. Herr Henlein gave Herr Hitler a full report on the present stage of the negotiations with the Prague Government on the Sudeten-German problem.

Although I understand an outline of Herr Henlein's mission was communicated to Herr Hitler by telephone before the former left Prague on Thursday, there was a further delay of two hours on Friday morning before Herr Henlein was received by Herr Hitler.

The conference was scheduled to take place at 10 o'clock, but it was 11-45 before word was received at the hotel where Herr Henlein spent the night that Herr Hitler was ready to receive him. At 11-30 Herr von Ribbentrop and Herr Henlein left the hotel for the Obersalzberg. They drove in separate cars and each was accompanied by an adjutant.

The conversations began immediately on their arrival and lasted with only a short break for lunch until 4-30, when Herr Henlein left by car to return to Czecho-Slovakia via Munich. Herr von Ribbentrop left the Berghof a few minutes later and drove to the aerodrome, from where he departed by 'plane for Berlin.

HITLER'S MOOD.

Herr Henlein arrived in Berchtesgaden early on Thursday evening. He had a short conversation with Dr. Lammers, head of Herr Hitler's summer Chancellery, but there was no meeting with Hitler.

This, together with the delay mentioned, gave rise to a belief that Herr Hitler's reception of Herr Henlein's mission was very lukewarm. People close to Herr Hitler in Berchtesgaden stated that he is in no mood for compromise on the Sudeten question.

I learn that the delay was unintentional. This was due mainly to the fact that Herr von Ribbentrop's train, which was scheduled to arrive at nine o'clock, did not get in until 10-30.

In my opinion Herr Henlein's reception at the Berghof was not altogether unfavourable. The nervous tension, which was apparent on Thursday and Friday morning, has now visibly relaxed.

For two hours while Herr Henlein was waiting for his call from Herr Hitler I watched him pacing agitatedly up and down the hotel lounge.

In the afternoon, when he came back from the conference, I noticed that he looked much more serene.

HENLEIN'S VIEW APPROVED.

An official communique was issued in Berlin on Friday afternoon on Herr Henlein's meeting with Herr Hitler, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent. The communique states that Herr Henlein had sought the interview at the express desire of Lord Runciman. Herr Hitler, it continues, heard Herr Henlein's report with interest, and was in complete agreement with him in his judgment of the situation.

It is believed in Berlin that the instructions which Herr Henlein received from Herr Hitler are unlikely to be revealed until Sunday, when the Sudeten leader will make his final counter-proposals. He will then have heard the broadcast speech which will be delivered by Dr. Benes, the Czech-Slovak President, and will be on the point of departure for the Nuremberg Nazi Party Congress, which opens on Monday.

The impression still prevails that strong British pressure will, in the meantime, be exercised on the Prague Government and that, in any case, Herr Hitler will not allow Herr Henlein to recede to any important extent from his fundamental claims. At the same time, he is likely to demand that negotiations be brought to a conclusion during the first few days of next week, failing which an appeal for help to the "German Fatherland" may be expected.

Unofficial assurances were, it is understood, given to Sir Nevile Henderson, British Ambassador in Berlin, before his departure to report to London early this week that Germany desired a peaceful solution of the Czecho-Slovak problem. There is some reason to believe that these were repeated informally by Baron von Weizsaecker, Foreign Under-Secretary, when he dined with Sir Nevile on Wednesday night.

MORE HOPEFUL VIEW.

Although a more optimistic view of the international situation was taken on the Berlin Bourse little business was done. The general tendency in Stock Exchange circles is to await Herr Hitler's expected pronouncement on foreign policy at the Nuremberg Congress.

Heavy industry shares were slightly weaker than on Thursday. Otherwise the market was firm.

DEFENCE OF NEW ZEALAND.

WELLINGTON, Saturday.—After a meeting of the New Zealand Defence Council, Mr. Savage, the Prime Minister, announced that the heads of the three Services had been present, and that reasonable preparations for emergencies had been considered.

"We are in constant touch with the British Government and everything reasonable is being done," Mr. Savage stated.

"We set out on a definite plan for the defence of the country a long time ago and the state of the world justifies our action."—Reuter.

WHEN POLITICS HIT RELIGION.

U.S. AMBASSADOR'S VIEW

IMPORTANCE OF FREEDOM.

PLAIN SPEAKING AT ABERDEEN.

The importance of religious freedom was the keynote of the address delivered by the American Ambassador at Aberdeen Cathedral yesterday in laying the corner stone of a memorial to Bishop Samuel Seabury, the first American bishop of the Anglican Communion.

In view of the latest action of Signor Mussolini towards Jews in Italy the Ambassador's reference to the difficulty of rendering unto Caesar what was Caesar's "but no more" was particularly apt.

Relations between Church and State, he said, had caused friction throughout the ages and was still causing serious repercussions in certain parts of the world.

It was inevitable that there should exist a borderline of vague delineation marking the limits of the spiritual and the temporal. It was also inevitable that this borderline should be the subject of honest difference of opinion.

"It is extremely difficult with the best will in the world," he added, "to render unto Caesar what is Caesar's but no more."

"The profession and practice of religion," Mr. Kennedy continued, "is being called a political offence. Men and women are being deprived of their natural-born citizenship: they are being thrown out of the land of their nativity because they profess a certain religion which the political authorities have decided to uproot. Indeed many who did not profess the forbidden religion but whose ancestors did are being treated with equal rigor."

CHURCH AND STATE.

Other religions were likewise threatened. The Church in order to be allowed to exist was forced to take its place as part of the political or worldly organisation of the State.

It could not teach what it believed to be the Word of God but rather what the authorities of the State decided it should impart in the interest of national discipline, national psychology, racial solidarity, or other political aims.

"In other parts of the world," went on the Ambassador, "the attempt is being made to eliminate all religion as a factor in human life. Churches and religious establishments have been dispersed. If allowed to function at all the churches are so restricted as to be unable by our standards to minister to the spiritual needs of the people they want to serve."

Mr. Kennedy said he was stating these things as facts and not as subjects of controversy or debate. They were not concerned here with the internal conduct of other countries.

They were celebrating an outstanding example of freedom of religious worship and he knew they all wanted to see more of it in their own countries as time went on. For the purpose of that ceremony they could content themselves with putting and keeping their own houses in order. To do so they could legitimately observe events in other lands and profit from them.

"We can and must," he said, "be eternally on guard that our own nations do not swerve from the path of free living which our forefathers marked out for us so plainly and at such great cost."

RELIGION IN DEMOCRACY.

Dealing with religion in democracy, he said one of the main pillars—perhaps the main—of the edifice of democracy was freedom of worship over which many bitter wars had been fought.

"It would appear safe at this moment," he continued, "to predict that freedom of religion is beyond attack in our countries. There seems to be no serious threat and there has not been one for many years to that particular civil liberty—the most precious of them all. But we must not become too complacent and decide there never will be."

There were other civil liberties which were only slightly, if at all, less precious.

Freedom of speech, freedom of peaceable assembly, the right to trial by jury, protection against unreasonable search and seizure, and the other rights which they associated with citizenship were worthy of their most ardent defence.

Their violation was often less easily recognised than was the abridgement of freedom of worship, but their preservation was as essential.

"The important thing," he said, "is that we still admit and treasure the principle that these freedoms are inalienable from the individual. No State and no political organisation can take them away from him. It is this conception of the rights of man which marks off the democracies from other forms of political life, and it is this conception to which we must cling if we are to go on living as we have been accustomed to live and as we want to live."

Mr. Kennedy said it appeared to him that we had come to a point where spiritual values had so declined in men that incentive was disappearing.

"More and more," he said, "I talk with individuals who are discouraged, who have laid their burdens down, who are victims of a hopeless apathy.

"We must give our young men and women who are just coming of age something else to hope for than a short life carrying a gun," he said.

THE FLAME OF FAITH.

It was the fault of the elders, he felt, that things had been allowed to come to such a pass, and he urged the re-awakening of the flame of faith and spiritual courage which had "always enheartened the men of right vision in the world's history." In particular, he urged the avoidance of war.

"Some of the nations of the world," the Ambassador added, "are involved in disputes both internal and external. The rest of us are anxiously watching from the sidelines, doing what little we can to counsel patience and forbearance. We do not want war to break out not only because of its immediate effect on ourselves, but because of the devastation it will leave in its wake visited on millions of innocent and unoffending people."

Concluding, he said:

"We owe it to the great mass of the people of our countries, and of other countries, to our children and to theirs to leave no avenue unexplored in our efforts to prevent war.

"Certainly the peoples of the world do not want to fight each other. Their leaders say that they themselves do not want war unless they are forced into it.

"In such circumstances it ought not to be beyond the reach of human intelligence to prevent the disaster everyone seems to fear.

"I believe it can be done by the application of the principles we have been discussing—by faith, by spiritual courage, by loyalty to right dealing, and by the exercise of common sense."

CHILD KILLED BY MOTOR-LORRY.

An eight-year-old child, June Lee, of Shooter's Hill Road, Blackheath, was knocked down by a heavy motor lorry outside Blackheath Hospital on Friday night. She was taken to hospital, and died shortly after admission.

BALLYMONEY YOUTH CRUSADES.

The crusades in Ballymoney concluded on Friday evening. The attendance at the meetings from the start steadily increased, until at the concluding meeting Trinity Hall was full to capacity. Addresses were given by Mr. D. J. Robertson, Mr. Jack Crozier, Mr. Herbert Jemphrey, Miss Florence M'Keown and Miss Meta Thompson.

ROOSEVELT STAYS AT HOME.

AMERICAN PRESS VIEWS

GERMANY'S ISOLATION.

BRITISH FIRMNESS PRAISED.

President Roosevelt on Friday informed Washington newspaper correspondents that he felt the situation in Europe to be critical and that he intends to remain in the capital during the week-end, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Washington correspondent.

This attitude of anxious watchfulness is reflected by the detailed dispatches and special articles dealing with the crisis appearing in every American newspaper, but the opinion most commonly expressed is that Germany will display moderation rather than risk war against what might prove to be hopeless odds.

"Should Hitler precipitate a new world war by a bull-headed insistence on an invasion of Czecho-Slovakia," writes William Simms, foreign editor of the New York "World Telegram" and other Scripps-Howard newspapers, "Germany would again face the world pretty much alone."

"The civilised world would be almost solidly against her, including the United States. Despite the Neutrality Act designed to keep America from doing that very thing she would supply the democracies with food and most likely with arms and ammunition. Among those who would insist on this would be the very ones who sponsored the law."

FORCES OF REASON.

That Americans are not unanimous in believing this, however, is proved by an article in the "New York Post" by Dorothy Bromley.

"The British might as well get it straight," she asserts, "that Congress is no more ready to declare war against Germany and send an expeditionary force than to start a housing project on Mars."

The "New York Times" emphasises the "unmistakable warning delivered by the British Government, not to Germany alone, but for the first time to the British public.

The paper adds—"If Great Britain employes her present advantage to force a speedy solution of the original issue, thus putting an end to the dangerous aggravations caused by delay, it will mean that the forces of reason in Europe—if they can be united—are stronger than the forces of violence."

"NAZIS CANNOT WIN."

Other typical comments include the following—

The St. Louis "Post-Dispatch" states, "The aggressor nations have profited by hesitancy and divided counsels among other Powers. They have been able to pick off their victims one by one, because it was plain that no hand would restrain them.

"Now a new concept seems to be dawning—or, rather, the betrayed principle of collective security is being resuscitated. Britain, delivering its first really powerful message of determination to stop Hitler's designs on Czecho-Slovakia, makes the most significant contribution of these critical days."

The Denver "Post," dealing with British policy, says "Hitler cannot make the same mistake as the Kaiser made and count on British neutrality if Czecho-Slovakia is invaded. Unless Hitler is stark mad he certainly is not going to start a general European war, for he must know that Germany cannot win."

GERMAN MILITARY MOVEMENTS.

FEVERISH FORTIFICATIONS WORK.

Reports of unusual German troop movements on the frontier in the Saar district and the Bavarian Palatinate are emphatically denied by the French military authorities at Metz, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent.

It is true that work is continuing feverishly on the German side in completing the fortifications, on which large numbers of men have been engaged for some time, but such troop movements as have taken place have been merely the relieving of units.

No unusual military precautions have been noted. The German reliefs have been very similar to those of the French troops participating in manœuvres on France's eastern frontier.

ARABS FOR NAZI CONGRESS.

GERMANY PAYING FARES.

SAILED ON ITALIAN LINER.

It is generally believed that the passages of the 100 Arabs who sailed on Wednesday for the Nazi Party Congress at Nuremberg were paid by Germany, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Jerusalem correspondent.

German instructors and guides accompanied the party, which consisted mostly of youths. Some travelled first class and others as deck passengers. They sailed in the Italian liner Galilea (8,040 tons).

The Hebrew Press and the "Palestine Post" comment on the paradox of a deputation of Arabs, undoubtedly Semitic, appearing at an Aryan Congress.

BY-ELECTIONS AHEAD

CONSERVATIVE OFFICE PREPARES.

LONDON, Saturday.

Political activity on the Conservative side is being resumed early this [illegible] Both Sir Robert Topping, the General Director of the Central Office, and Sir Patrick Gower, the Chief Publicity Officer, will be back at Palace Chambers on Monday. Sir Douglas Hacking will return shortly. Miss Maxse, the first woman any party entrusted with the task of chief organisation officer, is already back at work after a mountaineering holiday on the Continent. There are four by-elections pending—at Dartford, Oxford City, Walsall and Doncaster—but all parties seem agreed that it would be more convenient to fight them on the new register, which comes into force next month. Preparation for the annual conference at Newcastle is, therefore, likely to be the main preoccupation at headquarters this month. All the resolutions submitted by the constituency organisations have now been received. The executive will meet in the middle of the month to draw up the agenda.—"Peterborough" in the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post."

SPEEDWAY CHAMPION.

More than Cup-Final crowd (93,000) went to Wembley for world's speedway-racing championship final. New champion, "Bluey" Wekinson—his nickname is Australian for red-haired—has raced for 12 years. Makes over £50 a week, but has to pay for mechanics, equipment accidents. Machines, which cost £85 each, may last two or three seasons.—William Hickey in the "London Express."

FASTER THAN EVER.

Here is a piece of news for you. Sir Malcolm Campbell is already building a new and faster boat for next year, and he is confident that he will break his own world's record of 129 m.p.h. odd by a very wide margin. I always knew that these record-breaking attempts were the most scientific affairs, but never realised exactly how well worked they are. For instance, when Sir Malcolm Campbell was trying he was at 1,400 feet above sea-level. "At that height I was losing 85 horse power," he told me. "At Utah—where Eyston and John Cobb are racing—the height is counteracted by the absence of wind, and the loss of horse power is about 4 per cent." Incidentally he rather fancies that John Cobb, when full out, will lower Eyston's record.—"Wonderful London" in the "Daily Sketch."

MISS MAY BAILIE.

This young pianist also holds other Certificates for Trinity and London Colleges.

NO FLOWERS FOR HITLER.

BERLIN, Friday.—Visitors to Nuremberg next week for the Nazi Party Congress are sternly warned that they must not fling flowers into Herr Hitler's motor-car, or attempt to jump on the running boards, as this might cause a serious accident. They are further warned against trying to break through cordons.—Exchange.

LINEN TRADE REVIEW.

Wait-and-See Attitude Of U.S. Buyers

Anglo-American Pact Delays—Home Market Hopefulness—Some Forward Buying—New American Vogue—Footwear and Handbags to Match—German and Russian Flax Area Declines—Lower Yield in Ulster.

(From a Special Correspondent.)

[illegible] quietness at this time of [illegible] been accentuated by known [illegible] which are altogether exceptional. [illegible] bright spot is the steady stream [illegible] from the British Dominions, [illegible] have helped to keep a fair per[illegible] Ulster spindles and looms at [illegible] While such orders are not in[illegible] large, and cover a wide range [illegible] they aggregate to worth-while [illegible].

Guild's Activities.

[illegible] with the home market is of [illegible] hand-to-mouth nature, but it [illegible] apparent during the past few [illegible] that some cross-Channel linen [illegible] have realised the fact that linen [illegible] could hardly fall below present [illegible] and they have commenced to buy [illegible] in the certain conviction that [illegible] will have risen by the time that [illegible] require the goods. Our active [illegible] Linen Guild is organising a Linen [illegible] in Glasgow this month, and plans [illegible] another in Oxford in October. [illegible] Irish Linen Queen will visit both [illegible] and will be the guest in Glasgow of the organisers of the Empire [illegible] during a tour of the exhibits. [illegible] Irish Linen Guild has accepted the [illegible] of the London County Council Trade School to arrange a further series of four talks to retail linen distributors for the season 1938-9.

Last week the British Government distributed an order for 1,142,000 yards of flax tent duck amongst the Scottish manufacturers, who specialise in this coarse fabric. There is much competition and price-cutting for such orders, and, as one manufacturer told me, to accept a contract of this nature is equivalent to changing a shilling for twelve pennies. However, they help to keep spindles and looms moving, and thus reduce overheads.

Holding Up Business.

It is quite obvious that we cannot look for a real linen trade revival until U.S.A. buying reaches a normal level. Protracted tariff negotiations have spoilt this market for months, and Ulster will have paid fully for any concessions which are granted her eventually in connection with her staple export. It is now freely predicted that the signing of the Anglo-U.S.A. Reciprocal Trade Pact, if not performed early this month will be deferred until after the American elections. It is perhaps hopeful that Mr. Adolf Berle, the noted economist and American "Brain Trust" expert, who has acted as advisory expert at the Washington Tariff Conference, resigned that post last week on the grounds that his task has now been completed. Meanwhile American linen importers are doling out their orders with great caution, despite better trading conditions in the States and to the oft-proclaimed opinion that this autumn will be the best season for five years in textile trading in the American market. The general practice is to purchase sample lines, and where orders are placed only nominal quantities are involved.

Irish linen is becoming increasingly popular with American manufacturers of footwear, handbags, and other accessories. New York linen shops are retailing wheat-coloured linen shoes at five dollars per pair and upwards, and linen handbags at three dollars upwards. The fashionable American is now wearing linen shoes with a handbag to match, as illustrated. The shoes are made of natural linen supported by a rich deep Italian tan calf. The bag is composed of a heavy basket weave natural linen, with a plastic frame to harmonise. Particularly interesting is the natural linen stitching of the bag which matches the stitching of the shoe.

Linens For Argentina.

There has just appeared an interesting and valuable report on economic and commercial conditions in the Argentine Republic during 1937, and the early months of this year. This reveals that Argentina imported 411 tons of linen piece goods in 1937, as against 297 tons in 1936, linen suitings in particular selling better than ever, with white or cream [illegible] cloths in greatest demand. Some Belgian and Czecho-Slovakian competition, chiefly in the lower qualities, was successfully resisted by Ulster manufacturers. Orders for linen batistes and [illegible] for ladies' blouses fell off towards the end of the year owing to a change in fashions. Though Belgian manufacturers [illegible] took most of the business in wide [illegible] sheeting (widths 80ins., 90ins., and [illegible]), the sales of U.K. exporters were maintained. Argentine manufacturers monopolised the trade in cheap grades.

Ulster flax spinners meet with keen competition in Argentina from Belgian [illegible] but Ulster is supreme in that market in made-up linen and union [illegible]. Business morality (or lack of it) [illegible] South American market has always been the bane of Ulster linen exporters, but the amended bankruptcy [illegible] passed in Argentina in 1933 continues to exercise a salutary effect. "It [illegible] however," states the report, [illegible] the difficult business conditions [illegible] in Argentina early this year, [illegible] especially in the textile trade, [illegible] suffering severely from the [illegible] of over-buying in 1937, may bring [illegible] train a growing number of [illegible] Argentine purchases of U.K. [illegible] goods in the first seven [illegible] of this year totalled in value [illegible], as against £87,752 in the corresponding period of 1937. At the moment, [illegible] business prospects with that Republic are somewhat brighter, and it is noteworthy that the active buying season for textiles in Argentina is from October to December. There is a big flax acreage in the Argentine, but this fibre is grown solely for linseed.

The Flax Markets.

Ulster spinners have shown somewhat more interest in raw material during the past few days, but actual business has been confined mainly to fibre on spot or available for prompt shipment. Assortment in Courtrai, Rotterdam and elsewhere is very poor, as is usual at this time of year. Continental flax producers are taking advantage of the present favourable weather conditions for retting and rippling, and scutching is being neglected in favour of these prior processes.

Czecho-Slovakian spinners have recently been active buyers of Lithuanian flax and tow. Swedish spinners are negotiating with the Latvian Flax Monopoly, and Germany is reported to be angling for a further bulk consignment of Estonian fibre. Herr Hitler is believed to have been highly displeased by the fact that this year the German flax area declined by 27,000 acres, despite patriotic appeals and bonus inducements to German farmers. Nevertheless the yield of the new German flax crop, it is said, should be considerably higher than that of 1937. Whether the gap will be filled completely or not can only be determined when deliveries in bulk come in. Incidentally, the recent German military manœuvres must have hindered flax harvesting in the Reich.

A STYLISH PARTNERSHIP.—A FAIR AMOUNT OF ULSTER LINEN IS NOW BEING MADE UP IN THE U.S.A. INTO SHOES AND HANDBAGS WHICH MATCH EACH OTHER.

Even if the figures for the 1938 flax crop are only provisional, it must nevertheless be deduced that the rising curve of German flax production since 1933 has now turned for the first time. This fact, says the "Deutsche Leinen-Industrielle," lays upon all those responsible for the provision of home-produced raw material the duty of avoiding the mistakes of the past and working together with the common end of making up for lost ground this year, regarding the furtherance of the cultivation of flax in Germany as a pressing command, and acting accordingly.

It is now learned from official sources that the area sown under flax this year in Soviet Russia is 4,588,000 acres, or a decrease of 750,000 acres compared with last year's crop, and 45,000 acres under the Plan. The U.S.S.R. produces approximately four-fifths of the world output of (fibre) flax, but within recent years Russia's policy has been to curtail exports in order to build up her own linen industry and also to enable her to obtain higher prices for the fibre which she does sell outside her boundaries.

Last year the Soviet Flax Monopoly exported 34,000 tons of fibre, consisting of 21,000 tons of flax, 4,000 tons of tow, and 9,000 tons of spinning wastes (for felt-making, etc.). Of this total Irish and Scottish spinners consumed 7,200 tons of flax and 9,300 tons of tow, but it is certain that our purchases this year will fall far below these figures due to the Soviet's rationing policy, not to mention the trade depression. Spinners are in need of Soviet Slanetz flax in high assortment, but the supply appears exhausted and the Monopoly is apparently unable to consider further business until new crop flax is available. Ulster spinners miss particularly Ralo tow, for which staple raw material it is difficult to find a worthy substitute. Lithuanian tow, for example, is difficult to spin into a presentable yarn above 20's lea. The fibre on offer in the Belgian markets is disappointing both as regards quality and quantity. Selection is unlikely to improve until fresh supplies are forthcoming from mid-October onwards.

Reports on the new Belgian, French, and Dutch fibre are good, and tests show that a good yield may be expected. Prices of low-end Courtrai are now around 1,050 to 1,150 francs per bale with new dewret from 875 to 1,100 francs per bale. The modest amounts of Blue Dutch and Yellow Dutch offered in the Rotterdam flax market are quickly absorbed at firm prices. Last week there were 240 bales of flax and 61 tons of tow on the Belfast boat from Rotterdam.

The Latvian flax monopoly confirms the earlier reports of a reduced area in the Hoffs district, whereas the Livonian acreage remains about the same as last year. The earlier sowings are regarded as a failure, but the second and late sowings are of medium quality. The fibre is shorter owing to drought, and for this reason the total weight of the crop is expected to be a good deal less than that of the past season. Estonian new crop, it is thought, will be below average in length with a consequent reduction in yield compared with last year.

Irish Flax Notes.

Quality of this season's Irish flax crop is uneven due to adverse weather conditions during its growth. Farmers took advantage of good weather to sow unusually early this year, but the drought intervened, and germination was poor in consequence. Growth of the second braird was impeded by the tall first braird and by weeds. Probably the 7½ per cent. increase in the Northern Ireland flax area this year will be largely discounted by a lower yield. The Ministry of Agriculture has issued its annual warning to Ulster flax producers against releasing retting water before January, except when heavy rainfall has occurred and the flooded conditions of the rivers and streams allow the flax water to be discharged without risk of causing pollution.

Late Mr. Clifford Morrison.

The trade learned with deep regret of the sudden death on Thursday of Mr. James Clifford Haigh Morrison, son of Mr. J. B. Morrison, chairman of the Ulster Spinning Co., Ltd., Belfast. Although of a reserved disposition, Mr. Clifford Morrison (as he was always known) was one of the most popular and gifted members of the younger generation in the industry. He worked hard and played hard, and was one of Ulster's leading yachtsmen.

Tow wefts, 12's, 15s 3d per bundle; 14's, 13s 3d per bundle, and 40's, 7s 6d per bundle. Line wefts, 40's, 8s 9d per bundle; 50's, 7s 9d, 80's to 130's, 6s 9d per bundle; 140's, 6s 10½d; and 150's, 7s 1½d per bundle—all per bundle of 60,000 yards of grey yarn, average quality, subject to usual trade discounts. Nominal Scottish dry spun linen yarn values: Tow weft, 3lb., 2s 11d per spindle; 3½lb., 3s 2d per spindle; 4lbs., 3s 5d per spindle. Tow warp, 3½lbs., 3s 7d per spindle; 4lbs., 3s 10d; 5lbs., 4s 6d; 2½lbs., 3s 5d; and 3lbs., 3s 11d per spindle. Flax warp, 4lbs. to 5lbs., 1s 3d per lb.; 2½lbs. flax 3-ply, 1s 8d per lb.; 2lbs., 3-ply, 1s 6d per lb. Under the Scotch system of yarn numbering the yarn number indicates the weight of a spindle or spangle of 48 cuts, or 14,400 yards.

Lancashire Cotton Market.

Prices on the Liverpool cotton market have been firmer during the last week, and quotations of all growths are from 10 to 15 points higher.

So far as cotton yarns are concerned there is no improvement in the conditions which have prevailed during the last few weeks. Sales are few and far between, and although one does hear occasionally of fair weights having been booked the mills which are running are mostly spinning against old orders, declarations for which have been coming through slightly more freely of late.

The quietness of the Lancashire cotton market, as in the case of the linen market, is much accentuated by the tension caused by the Czecho-Slovakian crisis. Nobody has any confidence to consider a forward policy, and only a miscellaneous trade is going through. Prices keep steady, and although there is a fair mail inquiry from India and the smaller Eastern markets for various styles there does not seem to be any serious attempt to book business; most buyers prefer to adopt a wait-and-see policy. The market is dull and lifeless, nor can any improvement be reasonably anticipated until the war clouds, which are at present overshadowing the world, are to some extent dissipated.

CRIME STORIES GO STRONG

IN AMERICAN PRISONS.

CHARY OF ADMITTING IT.

Prisoners in Sing Sing, the great New York penal establishment, just cannot get away from their "profession." Even in their leisure time they go to the library and read—crime stories.

Mr. Dawson says the convicts are very shy of admitting this preference, for of 200 of them who were asked outright, only five admitted that they liked detective stories.

Dawson then set to work to check the library records, and in doing so found that more than 75 per cent. of the books borrowed were of the detective and mystery classification. Only 10 per cent. were classics, and two per cent. were humorous books.

The literary taste discovered as a result of the survey is believed representative of the prison's inmates; in fact to be representative not only of Sing Sing but of the country's prison population as a whole.

ARCHDEACON ADVISES PARENTS

"Parents shouldn't be stupefied because their children fall in love with apparently unattractive companions," said Archdeacon Swanson, of Calgary, Alberta, in a sermon entitled "The way of a man with a maid," which has aroused considerable interest among Canadian parents.

"Falling in love is entirely accidental," he declared. "There is no use making rules about how to choose the ideal mate."

People with tastes in common were no more likely to make a success of marriage than opposites.

"I know of as many instances of geniuses being happily married to 'dumb' mates as I do of happy marriages between people with the same backgrounds," he added

LOST HAND; DIDN'T REMEMBER.

Because he had "had a few beers," a Melbourne man was unable to remember that his hand had been shot off.

This statement was made in a case in which Leonard Feain was charged with having wounded his father, Michael Feain, a salesman.

Michael Feain in evidence said he could not remember much of the shooting. He had had a few drinks that day. His hand was amputated at the Melbourne hospital.

He had heard that his hand had been shot off by a gun but he did not remember it. A detective said Leonard admitted shooting at a knife his father was holding and he was afraid he was going to attack him. The case was dismissed.

CAVES PACKED WITH FOSSILS.

Indisputable evidence that a prehistoric man, said to bear a greater likeness to the "missing link" than any previous discovery, lived in the Northern Transvaal, and hunted for his food on springbok flats with stone implements, has been unearthed by the scientists who are excavating at Makapan Caves, near Potgietersrust, about 140 miles from Johannesburg. The scientific expedition, which consists of Professor C. Van Riet Lowe, head of the Archæological Bureau of the Department of the Interior; Dr. Robert Broom, and Mr. H. B. S. Cooke, declare that these caves contain the largest store of fossils, dating from tens of thousands of years ago, that has ever been found "In the Makapan deposits," stated Professor Lowe in an interview, "we have found thousands of the Makapan man's tools, such as the axes with which he did his digging and flakes with which he did his cutting. These tools lie with the fossilised remains of the extinct antelope, giant horses, and three-foot buffalo he hunted." Professor Lowe expressed the view that the caves, which are very extensive, were thousands of years ago very fully occupied by prehistoric man In time the roofs of the caves started to crumble, and this caused the Makapan man to move away. Later rock falls blocked the entrances, and lime seeping through fossilised everything. The scientists have nearly 800 tons of deposit to sift, all of which is rich in fossils. Professor Lowe anticipates that it will reveal the first complete remains of the Makapan man's ancestors, and the real "missing link" which scientists have been seeking for many years.

COURT'S WEDDING PRESENT.

At Paisley Police Court a solicitor, appearing for a young woman accused of leaving her motor car too long in the street, told Bailie Reid:

"My client went into a drapery establishment to try on a wedding dress. She was detained something like 45 minutes instead of 15 as she expected.

"She is now married and on her honeymoon and I suggest you might deal leniently with the case. It would be a nice wedding present."

Bailie Reid's "present" was a fine of £1 or 10 days.

KNIT YOUR OWN SUIT.

BUT BE SURE OF YOUR WOOL.

One of the most remarkable features of modern woman's wear is the evolution of wool, and especially of knitted garments. In days gone by, wool, and above all, knitted wool, was associated exclusively with winter wear.

The knitted wool suit and dress are essential items to-day in the wardrobe of every woman of every age all the year round. The suit is seen on every seaside promenade even at the height of the summer season, jumpers are the accepted accompaniment of every tweed or cloth suit, wool has even taken an honoured place in the ballroom.

Credit for this noticeable development is unquestionably largely due to those manufacturers who produce the skeins of wool, ready for the hands of the knitter. Fine, soft, light, every woman loves to linger at the counter where such wares are displayed. She loves, too, to purchase, especially when she sees that the manufacturers are that famous firm, Patons & Baldwin, Ltd., of Halifax. The P. & B. wools have an unassailable reputation.

Produced in an infinite variety of all the latest colours, the merest amateur can knit herself garments that are a pleasure to knit. She can make whatever garments she requires that will wear well, bear the stamp of smartness, and look just right till the very end.

THE GARDENER'S CORNER

Climbers That Will Make Walls Brighter

By "The Man With The Hoe."

SEPTEMBER is the harvest month over the countryside and this also applies to gardens.

Apples and pears are ripening and some early varieties are being gathered, but these fruits are scarce this year owing to the long cold weather experienced at the time of setting.

There are good crops of cucumbers and vegetable marrows, and some melons grown in frames placed on hot beds. Tomatoes in greenhouses are still giving some returns, although they ripen slowly for want of continued sunshine. Potatoes such as May Queen and British Queen have been good and well-flavoured, which is so desirable in a crop which everyone uses.

Troublesome Common Ivy.

As the autumn comes along those who have built or are living in new houses want to clothe the walls with climbers. Many think common ivy is the easiest got and a proper plant for this purpose, but ivy grows quickly, gets into window frames and spouts, and in time requires much labour in cutting. So if ivy is wanted, only the silver and gold varieties should be chosen, as they are far the easiest to keep under control.

There are some good wall plants and climbers which have beautiful flowers and are much more varied and suitable than ivy. Here are some which make admirable climbers:—Ampelopsis veitchii and schizophagma hydrangeoides, both of which cling to the wall like ivy; clematis montana, Passiflora Constance Elliot, solanum crispum, jasmines, honeysuckles, ceanothus, cotoneasters, azaras, clianthus puniceus, escallonia langleyensis, buddleia colrilei, and arislolochia sipho.

Besides these there are others which require warm sheltered spots, such as bignonia grandiflora, and which makes a great show when well established, and for lower walls under windows many of the cotoneasters, such as horizontalis, are suitable, also some of the berberis, as their leaves in autumn colour beautifully and their fruits or berries are handsome during the autumn and winter months.

As the winter is generally a dull time for flowers, here are some bushes which may be chosen to give colour at intervals during the winter and early spring:—Chimonanthus fragrans, the Chinese winter sweet. It has pale yellow and purple flowers. Cornus mas, the "Cornelian cherry," which has yellow flowers in February and March.

Corylopsis spicata has also yellow flowers in February and March, which are fragrant. The flowers in the above three come before their leaves. There are also the Chinese witch hazel and viburnum fragrans, and many of the ericas, jasminum nudiflorum, and daphne mezereum are well known.

A balsam was seen growing in a border. This plant when its seeds are ripe has a startling method of scattering them broadcast, which makes it a popular plant with children. It is named Impatience, probably on this account.

The common whin or gorse opens its pods with a snap when dispensing its seeds. This may often be heard when seated in its vicinity on a bright summer day. The seed or other plants such as Scotch thistles are dispersed by the wind on their tiny parachutes or they adhere to the coats of passing animals. In this way many weeds find their way into the congenial soil of a garden.

Time for Transplanting.

September is a good month for transplanting evergreens and for planting new bushes also. If the bushes are large and choice it is best to keep a ball of earth round them, so that they receive as little check as possible, also to keep them well watered if the weather is dry. This is a good time also to put in cuttings of evergreen bushes. A nursery bed should be made in a sheltered spot and the cuttings placed in lines and firmly tramped in so that wind and rain does not shift them. This is a very interesting method of raising plants, which will give pleasure in the watching of their progress.

It is a wonder that more annuals are not grown, as some of them are very beautiful. Some seen in vases in a drawing-room were most attractive. The flowers were malope and lavatera. They are rosy purple in colour, and belong to the mallow family. The eschscholtzias are also well worth growing, as they have now flowers of many different shades of colour, which are as fragile as Iceland poppies, and, if associated with gipsophilas, or some of the grasses, are charming in their effect.

There are quite a number of annuals which can now be sown in a greenhouse and potted on for winter and early spring flowering. Here are the names of some of them—Alonsoas, clarkias, godetias, nemesias, petunias, mignonette and salpiglossis.

WRESTLING THRILLS IN BELFAST.

LIVELY FARE AT ARENA

REFEREE HAS TOUGH TIME.

ONE MAN "KNOCKED OUT" GONG.

The referee and the two contestants in an all-in wrestling bout at the Belfast Arena last night were thrown out of the ring, and at times all three joined in in a free-for-all.

This happened in the opening bout, in which Hell Cat Nelson (Vancouver) was opposed to Jack Allison (Lancs.) The latter created a scene when warned by the referee, and the two went at it hammer and tongs, while Hell Cat, feeling lonely, also joined in.

While Allison was having sticking plaster applied to a leg, Hell Cat sat perched on the ropes near his corner waiting to "spring." Hell Cat then paid attention to the referee, and was promptly thrown out of the ring. Allison then threw his opponent, and Hell Cat, not relishing this, clambered through the ropes to safety. Eventually Allison gained the verdict by two throws to one, and thus tamed the Hell Cat.

CONTROLLER HELD HIS OWN.

Douglas the Turk, all the way from Constantinople, conquered an "infidel" in Digger Hayden (New Zealand). Digger emulated the contestants in the first bout by tackling the referee, but he had bitten off more than he could chew. Eventually the Turk won by two throws.

The main contest was between John Dallas (Chicago), known as "The wild Tarzan," and Maurice Jones (Canada). Once when Tarzan had been floored he beat his chest a la Johnny Weismuller, and most of the spectators then gave vent to the cry of the jungle.

Jones was an able opponent, and on one occasion threw the scowling Mr. Dallas clean out of the ring. The Chicago man sounded the gong by the simple expedient of landing on it. The referee had the unpleasant task of informing them that the round was over, as the gong was temporarily out of action.

SPECTATOR TURNS VOCALIST.

After Jones had secured a submission fall, there was a rare set-to, and one spectator was at least topical when he sang the first few lines of "Oh, Ma, Ma, get that man for me."

After Dallas had won a round, and was about to commence the final round, he received a blow on the head with a stool which was hurled by a spectator. They must be very tough in Chicago, for he, nevertheless, went on to win the contest.

The final bout between Jack Jacquers (France) and Jack Alcar (Great Britain) provided the best exhibition of wrestling. It was a very fast contest, and neither man played to the gallery. A draw was a very fair decision.

BOWLING PROTEST.

CUP FINAL METHODS.

COUNCIL MEETING IN DUBLIN.

At a largely attended meeting of the Bowling League of Ireland, held in Dublin on Friday evening, a strong objection was raised to the method adopted in playing the Bowling League of Ireland Cup final.

The venue this season was arranged without the consent of the Council. In future the Council will arrange all dates and venues for all finals. In the Baird Cup final the result will in future be decided on the number of shots up against the number of shots down.

Mr. Richardson, of Blackrock, raised the question of registered "A" team players playing on "B" teams in junior matches.

Mr. Staff, competition secretary, said on looking over some of the cards he saw one club had played 10 "A" players in junior matches.

THE PAIRS CHAMPIONSHIP.

The semi-final of the pairs I.B.A. championship between Cavehill (J. Lyons and P. T. Watson) and Ballymoney (A. M'Coy and S. Agnew) took place on Friday evening at Belfast green when the former won by 22-17. In the other semi-final Kenilworth (A. E. Ingram and F. G. Bestall) beat North Belfast (A. Boyle and A. Boyle, junior) by 26-16 on the same green. The final takes place to-day between Cavehill and Kenilworth.

CHEW SHIELD SEMI-FINAL.

At Alexandra Park, on Friday evening, Castleton "B" and Alexandra "B" met to decide who would provide the opposition to Bangor in the final at Ormeau Park on Tuesday evening, and after a well-contested game the Castleton "B's" ran out winners by 109-99.

Skips and scores.—Castleton "B" (+15)—W. Brown 23, B. Fitzmaurice 23, R. V. Cloughley 30, R. Cowan 18. Alexandra "B" (+20)—S. Beattie 19, P. Harnan 19, J. Anderson 20, A. Miller 21.

M'ALEVEY GOLD CUP

TWO TRIAL STAKES.

THRILLING SEND-OFF AT CELTIC.

The M'Alevey Gold Cup had a thrilling send-off at Celtic on Friday night with Cahercon Lad, one of the most improved dogs in training, although now in his fourth year, starting the outsider of the party of four in the opening heat of the qualifying series, and winning a great race by two lengths in 30.51secs.

Favourite at 6 to 4, Sager Girl was expected to follow up her good form of the previous night at Dunmore by beating a first-class trio, which, besides the winner, included Peter the Piper and Edenasharra Cutlet, both winners in fast time in recent racing.

The bitch did not have the best of luck on the first turn, and the winner cleverly took a lead which he held to the finish without appearing to be unduly extended.

FINNSIDE'S SPEED COUNTS.

There was even more excitement in the second heat, Finnside coming with an electrifying turn of speed in the run home to beat Claremont Mutton—a very poor stayer on this night's performance—to score by half a length in the fast time of 30.42secs.

Winning times of heat winners give some indication of what may be expected when the dogs engaged are brought to concert pitch for a trophy and stakes which set a new record for Irish greyhound racing.

Drawn on the rails and getting the bend in front, Miss Garvey got a clear run all the way in the Balmoral Stakes, and made the most of it to register a two lengths' win in 31.94secs.

DEFEAT OF LONE BIDDY.

Challenged by Lone Biddy on the top turn the winner came again in the run home, the four-year-old finding the closing pace too hot.

Nil Admirari, a newcomer with moderate trial form, beat the Shawian representative, Strathdale, in the good time of 31.13 secs. in the Nursery Stakes (No. 2), a neck separating the pair after Strathdale had led almost to the line.

His kennel companion, Shout Huragh, made speedy amends in the next Nursery event, although somewhat luckily.

Favourite at 5 to 4, Majestic Sandhills took a lot of punishment on the first turn, as did most of the field, and the winner must have held a lead of at least ten lengths at the half-way mark.

The favourite was catching him hand over fist coming to the line, and half a yard after crossing it was in front. Details:—

GETTING READY FOR RUGBY.

ANNUAL MEETINGS.

KNOCK GROUND TREATMENT

HARKNESS TO LEAD 1ST XV.

The annual general meeting of Knock Rugby Football Club was held in the pavilion, Hawthornden Road, Belfast, on Friday evening, the President (Mr. F. W. Zebedee) in the chair.

In his report, Mr. W. A. Lewis, hon. secretary, said a very satisfactory season had been enjoyed by all last year. A great improvement was apparent in the ground, which had responded admirably to the sulphur treatment applied during the close season. As the large playing pitch had been so treated and cut each week during the summer, the players were looking forward to much improved conditions on better turf.

To run four teams at full strength during the season, Mr. Lewis added, many new members would be required.

The financial statement was presented by Mr. N. V. Lyttle (hon. treasurer), who appealed for more members and prompt payment of subscriptions.

Mr. J. L. Andrews, joint hon. secretary of the Dance Committee, said there was an increased profit on last year, but disappointment was expressed that so few members of the club attended the functions.

The reports were adopted unanimously.

Honour caps for 1937-38 were awarded to J. E. Latimer (1st XV.), J. F. Porter (2nd XV.), and J. Carson (3rd XV.).

NEW MALONE PRESIDENT.

Dr. T. R. V. Irwin, a former captain of the club, was elected president of Malone Rugby Football Club at the annual general meeting held in Thompson's Restaurant, Belfast, on Friday evening.

His election was proposed by the outgoing President, Major E. R. May, D.S.O., who said Dr. Irwin had been the club's honorary treasurer for a great many years and had rendered splendid service. The election of Dr. Irwin was enthusiastically carried.

On retiring from the chair, Major May expressed his appreciation of the kindness and support he received from the members during his year of office.

In his report, the hon. secretary, Mr. W. H. Kidd, said the record of games played was a great improvement on that of the previous year. An improvement in the finances was also reported by Dr. Irwin. The reports were adopted.

Mr. W. H. Kidd was re-elected hon. secretary and Mr. Samuel Donaldson was elected hon. treasurer, in succession to Dr. Irwin.

The following members were added to the Committee of Management:—Messrs. F. J. Anderson, J. Bacon, J. H. G. Majury, H. Rankin, and R. H. S. Smith.

ENGLISH REFEREE PICKED.

SUBSTITUTES TO BE ALLOWED.

Mr. R. Mortimer (Huddersfield) has been selected to referee the international match between the Eire F.A. and Switzerland at Dalymount Park on Sunday, September 18.

It has been agreed to allow substitutes for injured players prior to the interval, and if either goalkeeper is injured at any period of the game a substitute can be brought on in his place.

BANGOR PLAYER REINSTATED.

At a special meeting of the Senior Clubs Protests and Appeals Committee last night, H. M. Couser (Bangor) was reinstated as from the 2nd inst. Arising out of an incident in the Irish Cup final re-play towards the end of last season Couser was suspended until October 1.

VAL HARRIS—LACEY LINK.

SHELBOURNE EX-CHAIRMAN DEAD.

The death of Mr. Mathew Redmond, at Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital, Dublin, removes one of the pioneers of Association football in Ireland

BRITISH YACHTSMEN LOSE.

FIRST CREW HOME DISQUALIFIED.

TORONTO, Saturday.—One of the three touring British crews was disqualified after finishing first in a six-mile international dinghy race here yesterday

C. H. Chichester Smith (helmsman) and Keith George formed the disqualified crew. The Canadian, John Wright, who was at the helm of the dinghy to finish last in the race, protested that his craft had been in collision with that of Smith near the start, and the committee sustained his protest.

As a result of the committee's decision the first two places went to Canada, who won the events by beating Great Britain by 13½ points to seven.

During Thursday's international contest Smith and the Canadian, Bourke, were the subject of protests because of their tacking. The Royal Canadian Yacht Club Committee sustained these protests, and Smith and Bourke were disqualified.

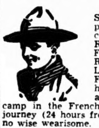
WITH BOY SCOUTS.

ULSTER ROVERS IN FRANCE.

ONE AMONG TEN BRITISHERS

GUESTS OF THE PRESIDENT.



Ulster Rover Scouts who formed part of the British contingent of fifty Rover Scouts to the French National Rover Scout Moot at Laffrey, Grenoble, France, returned home this week, after a wonderful camp in the French Alps. Their long journey (24 hours from London) was in no wise wearisome. New country, new people, unusual sights, and a happy band of fellow Rovers from every part of Britain, all served to enliven the hours of travel.

Rain, typical Moot or Jamboree opening, greeted the party on arrival at Grenoble, and when tents were erected at Laffrey visibility was only a few yards. But what a prospect delighted the eye next morning. Brilliant sunshine, giving warning of the intense heat to come, shone down on a broad expanse of lake set amid high, tree-clad peaks. Everywhere small tents dotted open spaces between trees. During the remainder of the camp the weather more than made amends for the unkindly opening, and indeed the Rovers were glad to seek shade when they could. Climbing, hiking, sightseeing visits to Geneva, etc., camp fires, and all the outdoor pleasures of Scouting helped to speed the all too few days.

Friendships between the different British units and with foreign boys were many. In this connection happy contacts were made with the small parties from Poland, Denmark, Holland, Luxembourg, Belgium, Czecho-Slovakia. Food provided a major problem at the beginning of the camp, as the French Rovers' ideas on British dishes produced several strange concoctions that tasted worse than they looked. But without any hurt feelings this was quickly remedied with a little judicious assistance by British Rovers during meal times, and good solid fare became the rule.

RECEIVED BY FRENCH PRESIDENT.

One of the big events of the camp was the presentation of ten of the British contingent to the President of France, M. Lebrun. Ulster was represented in this pleasant little ceremony, which lasted about half-an-hour. The President personally conducted the Rovers over the castle at Vizille, where he was staying, and through an interpreter gave some details of the castle's history since 1610. The British contingent contributed to a broadcast programme, and also gave items at an open-air theatre on the last day in camp, when visitors and residents for many miles around were entertained by the campers. The Ulster Rover Scouts returned home with the main body, whilst others of the party travelled to the south coast, or set out for an additional week's hike in the mountains.

As part of the Belfast Civic Week certain of the juvenile organisations will take part in the Youth Display at Hazelwood. The Boy Scout display will be given by a tumbling team and a short item of bridge building. The 78th (Duncairn) and the 25th (Y.M.C.A.) will give the tumbling display and the bridge building item has been assigned to the 6th Belfast, who have been busily employed during the past week preparing for their part in the show.

That the value of the Scout Movement is fully appreciated is shown by the response to the recently inaugurated Boy Scout Appeal Fund. Over £200,000 has already been subscribed, and large and small sums continue to reach Imperial Headquarters daily. This splendid tribute to the Chief Scout and the Boy Scout Movement was the subject of a circular sent to all Ulster Scout Groups in which they were reminded that contributions from this area should, if possible, be completed before the end of September.

DEATH OF SCOUTING BISHOP.

The Boy Scouts have suffered an irreparable loss by the death of the Bishop of Jarrow, the Right Rev. James Geoffrey Gordon, M.A., a member of the Imperial Headquarters Council and Assistant County Commissioner for Durham. He was known as the Scouting Bishop because he gave practically all his spare time to the movement. In April this year he visited Ulster for the Ulster Scouters' Conference, and took the service on the Sunday afternoon. Boy Scouts all over the country, and especially the Scouts of Durham, will miss their Bishop.

Major Alan Goodfellow, who has been appointed as one of the four Civil Air Guard Commissioners to assist Lord Londonderry, is a well-known South-East Lancashire Rover Scout. His knowledge of aircraft is extremely useful to the Scout Movement, particularly now that troops are beginning to start Air Patrols, in which he is interested. He acts as an instructor and examiner for the Airman's Badge.

Two young Australian Rover Scouts, David Walsh and Sidney Smith, who have never been to sea before, recently left Sydney, Australia, with a Polish Scout, Wladyshaw Wagner, to sail round the world in a 50-foot yawl. They hope to reach Scotland in time to attend the World Rover Moot next year. Bon voyage to them, and Rover Scouts of all the world hope to welcome them in Scotland next year.

548 AWARDS BY CHIEF.

During last year the Chief Scout made 548 awards to Scouts for meritorious services to the movement and for gallantry. These include Silver Wolf (17), Silver Acorn (26), Medal of Merit (319), Bar to Medal of Merit (13), Silver Cross (15), Gilt Cross (30), Certificate of Gallantry (20), Letter of Commendation (19), Cornwell Scout Decoration (15), Cornwell Certificate (1).

There are now 6,000 Handicapped Scouts belonging to the Boy Scout Movement in Great Britain alone. The handicapped branch of the movement caters for the blind, deaf, dumb, mental defective, and cripples.

12TH ROVERS INVESTITURE.

An investiture ceremony was held in Helen's Bay Presbyterian Church last Sunday. The 12th Belfast Group, who have a permanent camp site in the district, attend the church and take part on special occasions. The second investiture of Rover Scouts to be held in Helen's Bay was attended by all three sections of the Group, and there was a large congregation. Rev. Leslie Martin welcomed the Group, and expressed the pleasure of the Kirk Session on having the 12th with them again for the ceremony of investiture. Mr. Martin preached an inspiring and eloquent sermon on "Service," stressing the importance of Rovers carrying out their motto in the course of their daily labours, in their homes, and to those with whom they came in contact.

On the conclusion of the sermon, Mr. Martin joined the Rover Leader at the investiture table, which was covered with the flag of St. George. The following Squires took the investiture—Reggie Maxwell, Wm. Redmond, Henry Morrison, Walter Young and William Patterson. Rover Mates W. Patterson (A.S.M.) and Charles Slater were sponsors and Rover Mate Pressagh bore the Group flag. The Rover Leader (Mr. D. M. Newburn) conducted the ceremony, and Mr. Martin offered the investiture prayers. Rover Scout W. Baxter sang during the service "The Lost Chord" and the lesson was read by the Rover Leader. Patrol Leaders M'Grath and J. Pressagh took up the offertory. The Wolf Cub Pack was under the charge of A.C.M.'s Doak and Pressagh. The troop was in charge of Duty Leader W. Calvert. The Group colours were deposited in the church by Patrol Leader T. Sweeney and Second J. M'Clatchey, Curlew Patrol.

STEWART'S TRIUMPH

MONAGHAN NARROWLY OUTPOINTED.

BRIGHT FLYWEIGHT TEST

PLEASED BELFAST CROWD.

By narrowly outpointing Rinty Monaghan over ten keenly-fought three-minute rounds, at the Belfast Sports Stadium, Cuba Street, on Friday evening, Tommy Stewart has qualified to meet Jim M'Stravick in the Ulster Flyweight Championship final.

A crowded "house" favoured the promoter, Mr. John Sholdis, and patrons witnessed one of the brightest flyweight duels seen in the city for some time. Both boys (writes "The Timekeeper") are to be congratulated on their fine display. They were obviously well trained for the struggle, and with little between them in the matter of weight (Stewart at 7st. 12lb. 13ozs. had an advantage of 11ozs.), they made it such a level fight that in my view the honours merely fell to Stewart in the closing heat through his extra spurt.

Rinty seemed to have the heavier dig, and his deliveries were well placed, but Stewart throughout fought like a terrier determined to have its bone, and in the finishing rounds he certainly showed no retreat before Monaghan's artillery.

Cautious tactics marked the opening, but both lads, having scored with left leads, jumped rapidly into action, Monaghan snapping home a whizzing left swing to the head, while Stewart delighted his admirers by landing a smashing right to the jaw that staggered his rival. Stewart was thus early forcing the pace, and in this and the next heat landed well with both hands.

There were many exciting moments in the third round, when Stewart, neatly stopping his opponent's leads, twice nearly charged Monaghan through the ropes.

LOOKING FOR K.O. OPPORTUNITY.

Rinty was by no means out of the picture in these hot exchanges, but he was playing a waiting game, seeking an opportunity for an anæsthetic right-hander, of which he gave Stewart a sample in the fourth heat.

Monaghan was "top dog" in the fifth heat, Stewart being rocked across the ring twice with left and right to the jaw. Tommy's impetuosity had nearly landed him in serious trouble, one clip to the face dropping him momentarily to his knees.

In the sixth session Monaghan was again the major scorer, Stewart being caught frequently with left-rights to the head, and one of these sent him half through the ropes, but he was back immediately, showing fine spirit by fighting fiercely to the end of the round, a left to the jaw staggering Rinty.

The seventh session was a ding-dong duel, with honours about level. Stewart's forcing tactics won him the eighth, and Rinty collected the points in the ninth with steadier drives, one of these carrying out Stewart's gum-shield.

As I scored the fight the last session proved the decider, and in this Stewart's extra aggressiveness must have impressed Referee Jack Dare (Liverpool), for after a glance at his card he stepped forward to raise Tommy's arm as the victor, a decision which was distinctly popular with the majority of spectators. Monaghan, however, well merited the cordial "hand" accorded him. He took his reverse as a sportsman should, being the first to congratulate Stewart.

LURGAN BOY WELL TESTED.

Max Brady (Lurgan) was a points winner over ten rounds against Jim Hall (Belfast), who at 8-6 was conceding a couple of pounds.

Both boys were good "millers," and the crowd enjoyed plenty of action from the opening gong. In the early rounds Hall's two-fisted wallops to head and body taught Brady to be cautious, but the Lurgan boxer scored with a left lead, and also made the heart a target for repeated right swings. The sixth round was an exciting moiety, the rivals having a couple of all-out slogs against the ropes, in the first of which Brady was nearly driven through Hall made a sturdy fight of it in the last four rounds, but Brady was the steadier scorer, and accordingly collected the award.

Jock M'Cusker (Glasgow), 11st. 4ozs., had a soft passage against Jim Maxwell (Belfast), 11st. 5lb., who was battered to a standstill by the seventh round, at the end of which his seconds closured hostilities by dropping the "flag."

Damaged eyes caused stoppages in a couple of six rounders, Jim Redfern (Belfast) beating Johnny Mullan (Belfast) in the fourth heat, while Jim Murray (Belfast) defeated Jim French (Belfast) in the first session of their bout.

Messrs. W. Knight and W. Gilmore refereed the supplementary contests, Mr. W. Coulter serving as M.C. and timekeeper. Mr. Trevor M'Calla was B.B.B.C. official-in-charge for the title eliminator, Mr. Alex. Dalzell, J.P. (chairman), and other members of the Ulster Council being interested ringsiders.

During the evening, a cordial welcome to Belfast was given Jackie Saunders (Dublin,) who has joined professional ranks, after establishing himself as world amateur featherweight champion, having won the U.S. Golden Gloves test as Irish and European title-holder. He will be steered by Mr. Nat Joseph, and should soon win favour in his new sphere of activity.

JOHNNY KING WANTS RETURN.

Johnny King, British bantam-weight champion, is not satisfied with the result of his match with Freddie Miller, America, and is seeking another contest.

Mr. Johnny Best, the Liverpool promoter, stated yesterday that Miller would not be able to meet King again for at least two months.

"The Control Board allow Miller to fight only once a fortnight, and his present engagements take him until the end of October," he said.

"I shall negotiate for another fight, but there is no chance of it taking place before November."

BARLUND TO BOX PASTOR.

NEW YORK, Saturday. — Gunnar Barlund and Bob Pastor will meet in a heavyweight bout at Madison Square Garden on October 3.

This has been announced by Mike Jacobs, who said that it would be the first of a series of fights to find a challenger for Joe Louis, the world champion.

Pastor, who was heavyweight champion of New York State, has been described as one of America's most promising younger heavyweight boxers.

Barlund, who comes from Finland, has appeared in England, when he fought Maurice Strickland in 1937.—Central News.

BOON OUTCLASSES DOLBY.

Eric Boon, the Chatteris lightweight, gained an impressive victory over Eric Dolby (Derby), at Manchester on Friday night, the referee stopping the contest in the third of an eight rounds' bout.

A left swing of terrific power by Boon almost ended the fight in the first minute. The blow left Dolby dazed, and in the same session he took three counts of eight and one of six, all from left hooks. Dolby avoided the telling punch in the second round, but was in no condition to continue after being down for further counts of eight and six in the third stage.

Jack London (West Hartlepool) beat Al Delaney, the Canadian heavyweight, on points over ten-rounds. Delaney conceded a stone and a half in weight. It was a close contest

In an eight rounds flyweight contest, Tiny Bostock (Leek) outpointed Seaman Chetty (South Africa), and in an eight rounds light-heavyweight bout, Tom Reddington (Manchester) beat Bob Firmin (Lowestoft) on points.

VICTORY FOR ALDO SPOLDI.

COPENHAGEN, Saturday. — Aldo Spoldi, of Italy, won the European lightweight title, as recognised by the International Boxing Union, by beating Carl Andersen, of Denmark, on points here last night. The title was previously vacant. The decision of the referee, Mr. Desmet (Holland) was highly unpopular among the 7,000 spectators.—Press Association Foreign Special.

WHO'S TURN TO BLUSH

"Turned Out In Deluge," Says Writer

THURSDAY NIGHT EPISODE

Sir,—You published a letter last week from "Elderly Woman," in which she said she "blushed with shame for her own sex at the treatment she received while trying to board a tramcar." I wonder what she would have thought had she experienced an incident which happened on Thursday.

During the terrible downpour of rain and hail after seven p.m. I sought shelter while waiting for a tram car, along with two elderly ladies (who had no umbre[illegible]) in the passage way of "Telephone Ho[illegible] Cromac Street, but immediately a [illegible] came and ordered us out. I am glad [illegible] seldom we meet with such treat[illegible] (especially where elderly people are [illegible]cerned, as it was a sorry sight to see [illegible] turned out in such a deluge) even [illegible] one is carrying out their duty.—Yours, [illegible]

"A VICTI[illegible]

GASSED AT 18 STATES HIS CASE.

Sir,—Your correspondent "Signs of the Times" letter is a gross insult to the men who served in the late Great War. I joined up before I was 17 (present age 39), and when I was only a few months over 18 was severely wounded and suffered the agonies consequent on being "gassed." The wounds have fortunately healed, but I am almost a complete wreck, and will be to the end of my days through being "gassed." The substantial weekly income, awarded by a grateful country, all goes to provide extra medical comforts to help to alleviate my sufferings. There is not one pensioner of the late war enjoying a substantial weekly income, as the majority are in receipt of from 8s to 40s weekly, the latter class being in the very small minority. To obtain a pension one had to have a cast iron case and very marked visible signs of the complaint, and its bearing on actual war injuries to justify an award of pension being made. There are, too, a great number of ex-Servicemen who did not make any claim for pension, and were denied the right to do so because they were too late in lodging their application, the regulations barring them.

Perhaps the employer "Signs of the Times" refers to, retained the pensioner, and, knowing the amount of his pension, paid him considerably less money. This is a practice which has been far too prevalent in this country.

Many of the "Old Stagers" referred to left good jobs to join up during the war, as they heeded the promise that their jobs would be kept open for them, but alas, when the war ended promises were unfulfilled. In addition, many were apprentices when they enlisted, and when they came back they were too old to finish their apprenticeship, and there were also many who served without returning.

I wonder what peak year "Signs of the Times" has in mind, as the slump set in almost directly after the war, and unemployment has steadily risen over the years. I am not a member of the British Legion, but I resent the remarks regarding the club key business on Sundays. The Naval Branch of the British Legion is the only section in Belfast to have a liquor and beer licence, and membership is strictly confined to those who served in the Royal Navy.

I sincerely hope and pray that war, with all its ghastliness, does not occur in our time, but if it does, I hope "Signs of the Times" will be young enough and man enough to be at the head of the queue at the recruiting office when the call is sounded.

"Signs of the Times" is still a young man so why does he not join the Army, Navy, or Air Force, as the opportunities offered are manifold, and when his term of service is ended he could call himself an ex-Serviceman. — Yours, etc.,

EX-SERVICEMEN AND RAW DE[illegible]

Sir,—"Lisnagarvey II." in his [illegible] "Jonesboro's" frankly admits som[illegible] Servicemen got a raw deal as re[illegible] employment. If "Lisnagarvey II[illegible] stated some thousands he would have [illegible] nearer the mark. I wonder if he is [illegible] of the fact that there are over 600 regis[illegible] for work at the British Legion [illegible] Belfast, as well as signing at the [illegible] employment bureau, not to mention [illegible] hundreds unemployed who do not re[illegible] at the Legion He also refe[illegible] his father's 21 years' service at the [illegible] which he retired into tranq[illegible] If the latter had had no [illegible] pension, no job, no bureau [illegible] and only a few paltry shillings pe[illegible] from the O.D.R. like many ex-Serv[illegible] in Belfast to-day, not to mention 100 [illegible] workhouse, does "Lisnagarvey II.[illegible] think his father would have been con[illegible]

I would like to inform "Lisnagarv[illegible] of a glaring raw deal the ex-Serv[illegible] received a few weeks ago in regard [illegible] particular Government job, inviting [illegible] employed ex-Servicemen to be traine[illegible] operators for part-time night work [illegible] partly filled by Civil Servants who [illegible] steady job on day work. One of [illegible] particular Civil Servants receives a [illegible] of £7 15s per week independent [illegible] part-time night job. THE PRIDE OF ERIN.

Sir,—In reply to "Disillusioned," I wish I could meet him face to face. I think if he was to study the meaning [illegible] good looks, and then open his eyes, [illegible] would realise that his education in this respect has, unfortunately, been overlooked or neglected. I wonder does this cross-Channel representative stay indoors and wait on our girls to call on him. I can honestly say I have met all types of girls from all parts of the British Isles, and I still think the Belfast girls are the pride o' Erin, both for looks and personality. I suggest to "Disillusioned" if he fails to get a wife here perhaps he would send for one of these English or Scotch lassies, then we would have the satisfaction of knowing we have two "perfects" somewhere in Belfast.—Yours, etc.,

"RENDRAG."

"BALONEY" FROM BELFAST.

Sir,—I was listening in to the North hospital half-hour, and I think it would be a good idea if Belfast would follow suit a few times a week, and give the patients in hospital something to listen to. I was a patient in hospital for two months with a broken leg, and I know what it is to listen to the "baloney" they give from Belfast; in fact, it was a joke among the boys. Someone would shout out "Get on your earphones," only to find out it would be a talk about bumble bees and their habits. Here's hoping for something brighter.—Yours, etc.,

Sir,—Permit me through the columns of your paper to thank Major Eastwood for his prompt reply to my questions. I feel that the people of Northern Ireland will be grateful for this information.—Yours, etc.,

COUNTY CRICKET.

FOUR YORKSHIRE BOWLERS

EACH TAKE 100 WICKETS.

The three county cricket matches which had not been finished in two days reached definite decisions, Lancashire winning easily against Surrey, Yorkshire getting home in rather undignified fashion against Sussex, and Essex gaining the easiest of victories over Gloucestershire.

Lancashire's victory over Surrey was made possible by a burst of splendour on the part of Paynter and Washbrook, who hit hundreds apiece, the Northerners winning by eight wickets.

Cox's whole-hearted innings for Sussex against Yorkshire was well supported by A. J. Holmes, and Yorkshire, with no fear of the possible loss of the championship, were set only 70 runs to make. To the general surprise they actually lost six wickets in making them.

Gloucestershire, despite the valiant innings played by Barnett and Crapp, had been set a task that was beyond them by Essex, and were beaten by an innings and 65 runs, Nichols bringing his number of victims in the match up to fifteen.

Robinson, the Yorkshire leg-break bowler, took his hundredth wicket of the season during the match against Sussex. He is the fourth Yorkshireman this summer to perform the feat in all matches. The others are Verity, Smailes, and Bowes.

WORLD PEACE HOPE.

greetings over, Mr. Blue told me of his experiences abroad as tender Robina cruised in brilliant the down Belfast Lough, writes a graph" representative.

the course of the interview Mr. Blue ed to the vastness of the Empire, then touched on world problems.

re and more I feel the Dominions the Homeland will have to hold closely. The peaceful future of world is largely in the hands of the of the English-speaking race, and includes the U.S.A.," he observed.

Continuing, he said many of the things valued were menaced to-day, such freedom and liberty There had been recurrence of crude materialism and man savagery. They had examples of in Japan's conduct towards China, Germany's attitude towards the Jews, and Italy's barbarity in Abyssinia.

On the other hand, in the Dominions and U.S.A. there still was a sense of the meaning of liberty and spiritual values. "We must all hold together and help to conserve these things for future genera- tions," he added.

Mr. Blue spoke in eulogistic terms of Australia, where they had an interesting time renewing old friendships. He had a busy but enjoyable time at the Scots Church, Sydney, and while out there met many people from Ulster, all of whom were identified with Church life.

"Australia has a great name in the world of sport, but I was not concerned with the Ashes," he remarked facetiously.

NEW ZEALAND IMPRESSIONS.

Speaking of his visit to New Zealand, Mr. Blue referred to the fact that he had broadcast while in the North Island. In Auckland he met Rev. Wm. Gilmour, a brother of the Rev. Mr. Gilmour, of Portglenone.

A tinge of sadness crept into his voice when he mentioned that he had later received a cable telling of the Rev. Wm. Gilmour's sudden death.

One of the services addressed by Mr. Blue at Auckland was attended by members of the Ulster Society, and after the service they plied him with questions about their native Province.

While in New Zealand, Mr. Blue met the Labour Premier, Mr. Savage—"a delightful gentleman, who was initiating very large schemes of social legislation."

Mr. Savage, he observed, had a very great regard for Lord Craigavon, whom he had met at a reception at Buckingham Palace.

Leaving New Zealand after a week's stay, Mr. and Mrs. Blue visited Samoa and Suva, in the Fiji Islands, and Pago-Pago in Honolulu. They landed at San Francisco, then up to Vancouver, and across Canada to Toronto.

Canada, he said had suffered for several years due to the failure of the harvest—a calamitous thing in a country largely dependent on the harvest. On crossing the Continent, however, there was every indication of an abundant harvest. In Toronto he was the guest preacher at the Knox Church.

AUSTRALIA'S PROBLEM.

Mr. Blue again spoke of Australia, saying the chief problem there was the populating of the country with British stock. The three Dominions, he proceeded, gave one an idea of the vastness of the Empire.

He added that he had broken his journey out, and spent a week in India, visiting Church Mission stations which were under the ægis of the Irish Presbyterian Church.

They had, he went on, seen something of the wonderful transformation that was taking place through the agency of the Missions.

"I have come back feeling sure of this—there is no other solution for the world's problems than the solution of Jesus Christ," added Mr. Blue.

He said he was greatly indebted to his people in May Street for their goodwill. Mr. Blue has apparently kept in touch with the affairs of his charge, and the first person he asked about was Mr. Charles Murphy, of the Advertising Department of the "Telegraph," and an officer of May Street Church, who has undergone a severe illness.

"We had friendly seas all the way," was his final remark.

TWO BOYS: EIGHT LORRIES.

ITTLE GAME IN THE YARD.

THEIR OWN EXPLANATION.

On Saturday night eight lorries and vans were parked all ship-shape in yard of a large Coventry engineer- firm and left for the week-end.

On Monday a strange sight met the of the staff. It looked as if the icles had spent a wild and hectic day.

They were in a hopeless state of os. They had been driven into other, wires had been pulled off d controls wrenched away. Only lorry showed signs of life.

The explanation of this surprising te of affairs was given, at the entry Juvenile Court on Friday when boys, cousins aged 12 and 14, told they climbed into the yard.

"We kept trying to move the lorries the self-starters until they wouldn't all," the boys told the police.

"We found packets of screws, opened and threw the screws away. Then found some books, but they were not good so we threw them away.

"We got a lot of bricks and piled them on the engine of one lorry.

"We tried to open a windscreen, but broke."

The boys were found in the yard hid- on Tuesday. They had returned to scene of their exploits which had the firm £35 and caused disorganis- ion for many days.

A probation officer said that one of the s was entirely out of control, and last ek stayed out all night on four asions.

The younger lad was sent to an oved school and the other placed on bation for 12 months.

RELATIVES SEE BOY FALL TO DEATH.

SLIP ON PRECIPICE EDGE.

ALL-NIGHT SEARCH FOR BODY.

The mutilated body of a boy who on Thursday night fell over a precipice while climbing "The Warrior," a well-known peak in Arran, in company with his father, brothers, and sisters, was recovered on Friday, after an all-night search.

The boy is Colin Weir, aged 16, of Dyner Road, Dibston Hill, Birkenhead, son of Mr. Robert Weir, partner in a firm of Liverpool sack merchants.

With their family of three sons and two daughters Mr. and Mrs. Weir were spending their holidays at Lochranza. When the family were climbing "The Warrior," Colin and a 12-year-old cousin were ahead of the party and reached the point known as "The Witches' Leap." Suddenly Colin slipped over the edge of the precipice, and his body hurtled over the granite crags.

Rescue from the top of the cliff was impossible, and the father and others returned to Lochranza, where a party began a search.

An air liner from Renfrew set out to help, but was recalled by wireless when the body was found about 400 feet below "The Witches' Leap." It was taken on a stretcher to the family's cottage.

AT THE O.T.C. CAMP.

ARMY COOK AND RATIONS.

"THE CHANCE REMARK."

Quartermaster-Sergt. Richard Anderson (36), of the Army School of Cookery, charged at an Aldershot court-martial on Friday with obtaining from the Navy, Army, and Air Force Institute three gammons and 48 lbs. of butter by falsely pretending that they were required for Oxney Farm Camp, pleaded in defence that he acted as the result of a chance remark.

Anderson was in charge of all the cooks at the O.T.C. camp at Aldershot last month, and it was alleged that he indented for the goods, intending them for his own use.

Anderson told the Court that in the Sergeants Mess one morning someone mentioned the exorbitant balance he was accumulating. He replied that rather than order an exorbitant quantity and see it go into the swill tub, he would consider drawing rations at his own discretion. Somebody said, "Could not you take some yourself and give it away, or do something with it?" Then he conceived the idea of taking a little for himself. He took the goods for his own use or to give away to somebody who might do with them.

The decision of the Court will be promulgated.

ROMAN CATHOLIC SCHOOL

FOR PROTESTANT KIDDIES.

MEMORIAL AT TYRONE MEETING.

At the meeting of Strabane and Castlederg Regional Committee at Castlederg on Friday.

The Ministry transmitted a copy of a memorial received from Mr. R. J. Allen, J.P., Doremana, and signed by residents of Barron, Drummond and Tyrkernaghan, regarding the question of the provision of a central school for the children of these districts. Mr. Allen, in his letter, stated that these townlands were predominantly Protestant, while some children were obliged to travel over three miles to a Roman Catholic School. There were over 60 Protestant children under 14 years of age in the district.

In a letter to Mr. James F. Gamble, M.P., on the same subject, Mr. Thomas Nelson said there were 30 or 40 Protestant farmers in the district without a convenient school. The nearest was Kilenagh, which was a Roman Catholic School with three Roman Catholic teachers. It was more than three miles distant, while Ballylaw School was over four miles distant.

Mr. Gamble said this was a matter which should have the attention of the committee without delay.

Mr. Perry moved that a committee consisting of the chairman, vice-chairman, and Mr. Robert Lyons, with the secretary, and engineer be appointed to visit this district and confer with Mr. Allen and others interested on the subject of school accommodation

The motion was passed.

TWO GIRLS IN BLACK PYJAMAS.

WITH GOLF CLUBS AT 2 A.M.

ARRESTED IN PARIS.

PARIS, Friday.—Police in many countries are interested in the detention by the Paris Police of two young women, a brunette and a blonde, who were found in possession of a score of passports in different names, but all bearing the same photographs.

The night watchman of a big hotel near the Opera was going on his rounds about two o'clock in the morning when he saw two women dressed in black pyjamas. They rushed for the stairway and slid down the bannisters, but were stopped by the night porter in the hall.

They were carrying golf clubs, which the watchman connected with the breaking open of bedroom locks and called the police.

When the girls' rooms were searched keys were found capable of opening the doors of rooms in most hotels in Europe.

The blonde revealed her identity as Mariana Mallakova, a Czech subject, and the brunette, as Maria Hagan, a Dutch subject.—Reuter.

"ARE WITHIN THEIR RIGHTS"

JURY RECORD REGRET

"You are quite within your rights, but it is unusual," said Dr. W. H. Whitehouse, the Lewisham (London S.E.) Coroner, when, on the advice of their counsel, two motorists whose cars had been involved in a fatal crash at Rotherhithe, S.E., late on Sunday night, declined to give evidence.

The inquest was on Arthur Jas. Kerry (54), a fisherman of New Road, Leigh-on-Sea, Essex. He was riding in the back of a car driven by Richard James Wilson, of Vardon Drive, Leigh-on-Sea, which was in collision with a car driven by William Goldie, of the Neckinger, Bermondsey. Mr. Kerry died in hospital, and two pedestrians and three other passengers in the cars were also injured.

When counsel representing the drivers said they had advised the drivers not to give evidence the Coroner remarked that unless some explanation is given by the drivers the jury might presume there was negligence on both sides and that they had something to hide. It is only reasonable that when persons are involved in accidents they should give evidence unless there is any criminal negligence.

Counsel said they saw no reason why drivers should make statement which might be used against them in other courts. They added that there was ample evidence already as to how the accident occurred, and any question of negligence could be taken up in other courts.

The Coroner—You are both within your rights in advising your clients not to give evidence. It is unusual, but I can quite see their point of view.

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death, adding, "We would like to record our regret at not having heard the evidence of the two drivers."

LIFTED THREE EGGS VALUED 7½D.

SURPRISING COURT CASE.

£1,500 A YEAR MAN'S OFFENCE.

A detective who hid himself in a shop and saw a mining engineer, holding a position on several companies take an egg from a counter, gave evidence at Bow Street, London, on Friday.

William John Barnett, aged 68, of Whitehall Court, Westminster, was charged with stealing three eggs valued 7½d from the shop of Mr. John Kenneth Garvey in Craven Passage, Westminster.

The magistrate, Mr. M'Kenna, said the case would be dismissed under the Probation of Offenders' Act, and ordered 20s to be paid to the owner of the eggs.

Detective Sergeant Hannam said that Barnett had been in the habit of purchasing a bottle of beer each evening at Mr. Garvey's shop. The eggs were in the front of the counter, and on August 24 while the proprietor's back was turned he took two eggs, which had been marked on police instructions. On August 25 he took the other egg.

"I was concealed on the premises," said the officer, "and I told him what I had seen. He replied, 'It is very silly of me. Will this mean ruin? and produced the egg from his trouser pocket. He said he was very foolish."

Mr. St John Hutchinson, defending, said Barnett had been a mining engineer in South America and Spain, and was now on the board of several companies.

"His companies bring him in over £1,500 a year, and it does seem on the face of it one of the most inexplicable cases one could imagine. This gentleman has brought irreparable ruin on himself."

After evidence of character, Dr. Hopewell Ash, a Harley Street specialist in nervous diseases, said Barnett's capacity for concentration was less than might have been expected, and his memory had been less efficient for some time.

WINDOW DISPLAY EXPERTS

COMING FOR BELFAST CIVIC WEEK.

For the forthcoming Civic Week window dressing competitions the Ulster Industries Development Association, organisers of the event, have invited four eminent judges to visit Belfast.

Two of these, Mr. A. M'Kendrick, Assistant Commissioner Empire Tea Market Expansion Bureau, and Mr. F. Lane Woodroffe, sales manager of Messrs. Bovril, Ltd., have judged Ulster and other Empire windows in Belfast on former occasions.

Mr. M'Kendrick will be concerned particularly with the provision and grocery trade, and Mr. Woodroffe will deal principally with these classes also.

Mr. E. M. Brown, display manager of Lewis' Royal Polytechnic, Ltd., Glasgow, and Mr. W. Steele of the display department of Messrs. Pettigrew and Stevens, Ltd., Glasgow, will be judges in the wearing apparel sections.

The Ulster Industries Association reports an unprecedented demand for display materials, and a very general interest from all parts of the city in the competitions. Belfast merchants will be facilitated in obtaining display materials up to and including Tuesday, September 6, from 9 a.m. till 6 p.m. daily, at a special office opened for this purpose by the Association.

FLOWER SHOW AT CARNMONEY.

THE Y.P. GUILD EVENT.

MANY CUPS FOR MISS ARCHBOLD.

The big feature connected with the flower show opened on Friday under the auspices of the Young People's Guild in the Lecture Hall of Carnmoney Presbyterian Church, was the outstanding success achieved by one of the competitors—Miss Netta Archbold.

For years past the Archbold family have been the strongest supporters of this show, and the most prolific producers of exhibits, winning the highest distinctions, and the young lady mentioned has had to her credit on many of these occasions a splendid record of wins.

This year, however, she has excelled to a remarkable degree, taking besides a very numerous array of awards in several of the sections all the cups offered except one.

These are the Waterworth Memorial Cup for the highest aggregate number of points in all sections—the children's excepted; the M'Kinney Memorial Cup, for the highest number of points in the department for cut flowers; the Dunlop Cup, for the highest number of points in the section for fruit and jam; and the Coronation Cup, for the highest number of points in the cake department. Upon this success Miss Archbold has been most warmly congratulated.

The President's Cup went to F. Watt, another competitor very hard to beat, for the highest number of points in the section for vegetables and farm produce.

The chair at the opening ceremony was occupied by the President, Rev. S. H. Nicholson, who introduced Mrs. J. D. Campbell, who, he said, in coming to declare the show opened, was welcomed not only for her own sake, but the sake also of her husband, very popular in that part of the country, and her father, Sir Joseph M'Connell, Bart., a member for County Antrim in the Imperial Parliament. (Applause.)

Mrs. Campbell, in declaring the show open, complimented the exhibitors on the admirable array of flowers and fruit in a season not by any means favourable, and went on to speak of the pleasure horticulture gave to those who devoted to it all their spare moments. To the young it was especially helpful in the way of giving them incentives to work in co-operation with nature all around them.

Miss Marie Hamilton made Mrs. Campbell the recipient of a bouquet of lovely flowers, and the latter was heartily thanked for her services on the motion of Mr. Joseph Craig, seconded by Mr. T. J. Kirkpatrick

The President thanked the judges, the competitors, and all who had helped arranging the exhibition.

The cups were then presented to the successful exhibitors.

The office-bearers in addition to the president are Mr. R. H. Kirkpatrick, hon. treasurer; and Mr. A. C. M'Clune, hon. secretary, while the superintendents are—Cut flowers, Miss Reta Louden; fruit and jam, Mr. Henry Price; vegetable and farm produce, Messrs. J. M'Crum and B. Rankin; Children's Section, Mr. T. J. Kirkpatrick; cake stall, Mrs. A. E. Boyd and Mrs. J. Kirkpatrick. Variety stall, Messrs. E. M'Keown and N. Andrews; and refreshment table, Mrs. Smyth, Mossley. Half-hour concerts are in charge of Miss Ethel Forde, and Messrs. N. S. Macauley and Leslie Flack, the accompanist being Mrs. N. S. Macauley, L.R.A.M.

TRAGEDY OF ILL-HEALTH.

YOUNG BUTLER'S SUICIDE.

A verdict that he killed himself while balance of his mind was disturbed was returned at a Wimbledon inquest on Sidney Wales (23), butler, employed by Mr. St. John Hutchinson, K.C., at Regent's Park.

He was found shot dead on Wimbledon Common and a revolver by his side.

His wife explained that he worried about the state of his health, and had previously attempted to commit suicide.

WAR BONUS SYSTEM PROBLEM.

ENGINEERS' DEMAND.

PERMANENT WAGE CLAIM.

EUROPEAN SITUATION EFFECT.

The Engineering and Shipbuilding Unions are demanding from employers that the system of bonuses instituted during the war and operative since should be transformed into permanent wages.

The employers offered to set up a joint committee to consider the question, but owing to the withdrawal of two unions, including the largest of them all, the A.E.U., no progress has since been made, but other unions, representing unskilled or semi-skilled workers, are now clamouring for the end of the war bonus.

Some of their members think that unless they obliterate the war bonus of the last war, they may have to face a fresh bonus of another war, and it would not be easy for them to adjust figures once renewed demands were made for increases on current basic and time rates.

The men of the shipyard side and the men in the engineering shops are jointly appointing sub-committees to frame instructions for their representatives to meet the respective employers, and obtain finality on the question.

Hitherto the difficulty has been to make the necessary adjustments covering varying rates of pay without causing irritation, for the calculations represent millions of pounds, and cover a complex system of ratios and differentials.

ALLAM'S SHOW AND SALE.

NOTED EXHIBITORS ENTER.

CHOICE SELECTION OF SHEEP.

Entries were numerous from many of the noted exhibitors, including several new patrons, at the second show and sale this season of crossbred ewes, held by Messrs. R. J. Allam, Ltd., in Oxford Mart, Belfast, on Friday.

Mr. George Low, Hillsborough, and Mr. Fred M'Neill, Kircubbin, were judges, and there was a choice selection of sheep penned, especially in the hogget class.

The awards and prices obtained were:

Best pen of hogget ewes, 1st prize and champions of the show Mr. Hugh Suffern, sold at 54s each; 2, and reserve champions, Mr. J. A. Crawford, at 58s; 3, and reserve, Mr. Stafford Graham, at 46s; v.h.c., Mr. David Young, at 43s 6d; h.c., Mr. Alex. Agnew, at 43s; and commended, Mr. Alex. Jennings, at 42s.

A steady trade ruled for good pens of warranted ewes at the ordinary sale of breeding and store sheep. Crossbred ewes (one-, two- and three-year-olds) ranged from 30s to 45s; crossbred ewe lambs 20s to 26s, Suffolk ewes 32s to 38s, with a few choice pens making 49s. Blackface ewes 24s to 32s. A consignment of 20 Wicklow-Cheviot ewes from Mr. W. R. Creswell was sold at 34s 6d.

Border Leicester rams and ram lambs according to quality made from two to 3¼ gns.

LIVE FAT SOWS AND BOARS.

At the weekly sale of fat sows and boars larger supplies than those of the previous market were on offer. A full attendance of buyers was present and a very bright trade was experienced. First quality York sows sold from 44s to 46s per live cwt., secondary grade 42s to 43s. A few unfinished lots sold under these figures. The highest price recorded for sows was £13 6s and boars £6.

JIMMY HAS TOOTHACHE

BELLEVUE MONKEY'S ORDEAL

Jimmy, the pet monkey at the Bellevue Zoo, has had a tooth taken out.

For some days Jimmy had refused his food and appeared to be very miserable. A close watch was kept upon him, and it was noticed that he was continually holding cold water in his mouth, holding his face in his hands, and rubbing his jaws with a great deal of energy. The head keeper was not long in coming to the conclusion that he had toothache, and on Thursday last Jimmy was examined by the "Zoo doctor" (Captain Alexander M'Lean, M.R.C.V.S., D.V.H., City Veterinarian), who found a portion of the hard shell of a hazel nut firmly wedged in a badly decayed tooth, and immediately decided that the tooth must be extracted.

Jimmy is very intelligent, and soon sensed that something unusual was about to take place with himself filling the principal role, and, like many humans, he did not look forward to the performance with equanimity. It was a considerable time before he could be persuaded to have a gag in his mouth and take the anaesthetic. However, he seemed at last to realise that the forces arrayed against him were too formidable, and settled down to the operation.

The tooth was taken out and three others stopped with cement, and Jimmy was returned to his cage in the monkey house, where he was later observed displaying the vacant place in his jaw to a large and deeply interested group of Rhesus monkeys who live next door.

THE OPERATION IN PROGRESS.

MID-ARMAGH ELECTION.

PROGRESSIVES FOR CAPT. STRONGE.

Mid - Armagh Progressive Unionist Association have just issued the following statement regarding a meeting of the association held in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, Armagh:—

"On the motion of Major G. N. Proctor, J.P., seconded by Mr. Geo. A. Edwards, and carried unanimously, it was resolved that this meeting welcomes the selection of Captain C. N. L. Stronge, D.L., M.C., Tynan Abbey, as Official Unionist candidate for the Mid-Armagh constituency, and pledges him its support."

The opinion was expressed that Capt. Stronge's interest in agriculture augured well for the farming community, especially in their just fight for a reduction of the land annuities, and as a resident amongst his constituents possessing intimate knowledge of all matters pertaining to their welfare, Mid-Armagh might well look forward to happier and more prosperous days.

PIG PRICES IN EIRE.

REDUCTION FROM MONDAY NEXT.

Pig prices are to be reduced in Eire as from Monday next by approximately 2s per cwt. dead weight.

By an order of the Pigs Marketing Board the following scale of prices come into operation from Monday next:—For factory purchased pigs bought by curers the rates for Class 1 pigs will range from 64s per cwt. dead weight to 76s per cwt., according to grade. For Class 2 and 3 pigs from 62s per cwt. to 70s. For non-graded pigs the rate is 60s.

The prices of non-factory purchased pigs, that is, pigs bought by live weight, have been fixed as follow:—Class 1, 50s per cwt.; Class 2, 47s 6d; Class 3, 43s.

Referring to the position of the trade in August, the statement says:—"About half the bacon manufactured by curers was exported to Great Britain, and the average price obtained for these exports was 91s 9d per cwt., which necessitated a payment from the Board's fund to enable curers to export. The average price at which bacon was sold by curers on the home market was 113s 6d per cwt."

A HOMELESS RACE.

IF imitation be the sincerest form of flattery, Herr Hitler's self-esteem should be inflated by Signor Mussolini's anti-Semitism. Racial fanaticism is running rampant in the totalitarian States. Hitler's pet antipathies are Social Democrats, Communists, and Jews. It is difficult for Britishers to realise the degree of resentment harboured in Teuton breasts. In that country's dark hour, when her people plumbed the depths of misery and humiliation, the Jew was blamed for turning their adversity to his own advantage. Now when a new Germany conscious of her strength has arisen she does not forget. She may have repudiated many obligations incurred under the former regime, but she has nursed her anti-Semitic bitterness throughout the intervening years and in recent times has permitted it to run to excesses that nothing can justify. The lot of the Jew in Austria since the annexation of that country has been deplorable, and brutalities have been permitted sufficient to make the Middle Ages blush.

And now Mussolini has joined in the favourite game of Jew-baiting. The decrees of this week directed against these unhappy people are a blot on the twentieth century. Not only is the lot of the immediate victims lamentable—and it cannot but excite the sympathies of nations in whom any vestige of Christian sentiment survives—but the position being created is of international concern. The Italian outburst complicates an already difficult situation. Where are the expelled to find sanctuary? Palestine does not now supply the answer. Countries like Britain and America cannot be ever-open doors for refugees from political and racial oppression. Various proposals have been made, but none presents itself as a satisfactory solution to a problem which is making the task of the international committee so extremely difficult.

The debt of Europe to the Jews is immeasurable. It has been said of the Old Testament that it has entered more deeply perhaps than any other book into the lives of the Western people. There is the grim addendum, however, that if it has given courage and consolation to the saints it has too often nerved the arm of the persecutor. The brutalities and outrages of which the Jews have been victims for centuries did not really abate until 200 years ago. With the spread of a more tolerant spirit, the Jews were admitted to civic rights. They repaid the more clement and Christian treatment by magnificent contributions to science and the arts. In sunshine and shadow they have preserved their racial and religious distinctiveness. It is too evident that in middle Europe a new era of persecution has begun. It is like putting back the hands of the clock. The countries whose inhospitality and harshness are now being so viciously exhibited will in the long run be the losers. Meantime the problem of "the Wandering Jew" remains.

DON'T BELIEVE IT—12.

THAT YOU CAN SEE STEAM COMING FROM A KETTLE

WHEN the water in a kettle is boiling, white vapour may be coming from the spout, but it is not steam. Similarly, in descriptions of the passage of a railway locomotive one may read that "it thundered by enshrouded in clouds of steam."

Steam may be issuing from the spout of a kettle and from the stack of a railway locomotive, but the eyes could not say whether it were or not because steam is invisible.

The white vapour commonly mistaken for steam consists of minute particles of water arising from steam condensing as it passes through the cold air.

These minute particles, floating in the air, become in some degree opaque, and thus become visible like particles of smoke. Therefore, what one sees is water vapour, not steam.

When the water in a kettle boils it cannot be made any hotter. It is, in fact, a waste of fuel to heap up a fire or turn on the gas under a kettle that is boiling, for the water, once it has begun to boil, receives no increase of heat, even from the hottest fire. The water becomes steam and ascends into the air.

But the steam itself can be raised to a much higher degree of temperature, and the raising of steam's heat is one of the principles of various types of high-efficiency steam-engines.

Belfast's 50 Years of Progress

THOMAS CARNDUFF writes a Salute to his Native City on the Eve of Civic Week.

DURING the course of next week Belfast will be celebrating the jubilee of its Charter. Fifty years ago this Northern capital of ours attained the dignity of a city! Fifty years of manhood!

It is a mere child's age in the eyes of many of the great industrial centres of the Kingdom. Yet Belfast has carried the dignity of its charter during those fifty years in no childish manner. It has outspanned its boundaries, its harbour is known to ships of all nations.

Many of the great cities of the world which have outlived their usefulness and now bask in the glamour of their historic past will bestir themselves with envy and wonder at the courage and strength of so young a city. Well may they ask: "What manner of people are these who claim equality with the great communities of the world? What part have they played in the history and civilisation of mankind that they now claim recognition from their sister cities?" Let us glance through the record of years since this city of ours first saw light of day.

An Anglo-Norman knight built a castle on the bank of its sluggish little river, the Fearset, during the twelfth century. Three hundred years later one of the O'Neill's held the castle with a couple of hundred retainers. Queen Elizabeth's henchman, the Earl of Essex, by an act of treachery, was able to wipe out the entire garrison.

☆ HALF way through the following century came the Scots Covenanters, and Belfast again changed hands. Cromwell's arrival in Ireland sent the Covenanters scurrying behind the walls of their new home to fling defiance in the teeth of his Ironsides. The Cromwellians were forced to hammer three solid days on the gates of the little walled town before the Covenanters would admit defeat. John Milton cursed the place for its arrogance and independent spirit.

William of Orange clattered through its streets at the head of his army on their way to the Boyne. Many Belfastmen went with him. Less than a century after King William's departure, the fighting spirit of this mushroom town was again roused by the arrival in Belfast Lough of a French warship. "Give us arms to defend ourselves!" the citizens cried.

☆ CARRIED away by their loyal enthusiasm, the Government acceded to their request. But they failed to study the character of the Belfastman. A Belfast citizen with a gun was a totally different person to the same citizen armed with a skewer or a spade. And so originated that great volunteer movement which was to save the linen industry from destruction and bring a tide of prosperity to a worried country.

In its narrow entries gathered those unfortunate young Irishmen who dreamed of an Ireland free and independent. The United Irishmen began and flourished in the town, and not a few of the townsmen were amongst the slain at Antrim and Ballynahinch.

Dan O'Connell marched from the South to crush its opposition to his aspirations — he failed. Governments have abused and threatened the town's inhabitants with dire penalties if they did not submit to their degrees.

Truly a fighting city! In and around Belfast's neighbourhood were born some of the greatest soldiers of the Empire. The city has given freely to art and science and music.

Inside the boundaries of this so-called inartistic city of ours were born the greatest of modern artists: Sir John Lavery, the painter; Helen Gilliland, the actress; George Birmingham, the novelist; St. John Ervine, the dramatist. Who dares question our contribution to art.

☆ WE have built industries that surpass their kind in the trade of the world. Our ships sail the seven seas and carry a reputation for craftsmanship wherever seamen consort. Our ropes and linen travel beyond beaten tracks to countries little known.

And why should we not glorify these gloomy red-bricked factories that continually hum with the noise of belts and pulleys? the smoke-grimed chimneys pushing their gaping mouths skywards, or the gaunt ribs of the cantilever stretching its arms across the steel-girt hulk of an ocean liner.

They have been bread and butter to generation after generation of our Belfast artisans. It is they who have called into the city the weaver and carpenter, the spinner and the bricklayer.

☆ AND Belfast prizes its privilege in being capital of Northern Ireland. It was from the townlands and villages of the surrounding counties she drew her finest citizens. Wherever her sons have pioneered in the far reaches of the Empire they have symbolised their love for their home town in crowning their colonial home with its name. Australia has its Belfast, so has Canada, the States, and far off South Africa.

To the citizens born and reared within its boundary, Belfast is more than a name: it is home. Its streets have been the playground of the child; its parks and open spaces the playing fields of the youth; its ships, factories, machinery and towering structures the creative genius of its manhood.

Pro Tanto Quid Retribùamus.

ONE of HISTORY'S MOST TRAGIC LAMENTS

Thoughts for the Times

by Dr. A. D. Belden.

ONE of the most tragic laments recorded in history is surely that uttered by Mirabeau, that strange genius who presided over the first development of the French Revolution, or perhaps it might be more true to say—over the last months and weeks of the old regime.

A believer in the Revolution, he strove hard to make it moderate and to save the French monarchy, but was struck down by disease engendered by his own evil living at the very moment when his personality might have saved the situation. As he lay dying, he cried: "The sins of my youth cost the Revolution dear; what could I not have done if I had been a virtuous man!"

Whatever may have been his philosophic doubts during the tragic struggles of his earlier life, he knew by the inescapable logic of life before he passed out that only the morally good can at last truly succeed. He knew with blinding illumination that the universe is ordered for righteousness.

* * * *

This does not mean, of course, that the merely successful is necessarily the morally good, for the evil man does "flourish as the green bay tree" for a time, repeatedly. We cannot judge by short term examination, only by a long term view.

As Emerson says somewhere: "The lies hold the years, but truth holds the centuries." What we do possess, however, in the large amount of evidence similar to Mirabeau's confession, is a criterion by which to judge some of the more fundamental issues of our time.

When we are asked to judge some of the major policies put forward for our choice in the modern world, the most useful question to ask is: "Will this, or that, policy in the long run further human life, both individually and collectively?"

Thus, should men believe in the Christian God, or not? That is, in the God who is like Jesus Christ? Well, let us consider what is involved in not believing in Him, in the deliberate rejection in our minds of Love as the ultimate principle of the universe.

The trouble so often with sceptics is that they will not be logical in their scepticism; they will not turn it into a positive creed and try sincerely to believe it and to operate it. They may have good reason for not doing this, for it means such a hardening of the heart. It occasions such a conflict of distrust and suspicion with their impulses to generosity and tenderness that eventually they are hopelessly committed to harsh policies with their fellows.

* * * *

Human behaviour and, increasingly, our general social life, tend thus to become shot through and through with an inconceivable cruelty. All of which restricts the enthusiasm for life in us all until we prove the terrible truth of Tennyson's words:—

"He that shuts Love out
Shall on Love's threshold lie
Howling in outer darkness."

Or take another fundamental article of belief, Immortality. It is almost the fashion in certain circles today to pretend that it is sentimental and weak-minded to believe in life after death. It is true that people, out of conventional courtesy, will still attend funerals in which the whole atmosphere is wrapped in this conviction.

Doubtless they regard it as a harmless superstition; it administers a little chloroform to the painfulness of death. Well, let us turn our scepticism into a way of living and see how life tests it.

To one who loves passionately there is no greater tragedy than the loss of his loved one in death. There is an awful rage that possesses the mind of the strong man in this experience as he is confronted with the inescapable character of death, the terrible blankness, the irrevocableness of it, and now [illegible] is to believe positively that this is utterly the end.

* * * *

Can he do it and not be a traitor to the love he has known and feels? Can he do it and not suffer fatal injury in his enthusiasm for living? Is not the relationship that he thought was sublime hopelessly cheapened by death, if death is the hopeless thing he believes?

If he desires to find the life force quickened within him and escape the triumph of death in his own living, he will have to change his belief. The only way he can save his own love from disaster and corruption is to realise that [illegible] the very test of life, love must be enthroned supreme over all.

Here is a method of judgment upon all the policies with which you are confronted in life. That which furthers life is sound and good, that which restricts and cramps and injures it is evil and wrong. Use the test confidently, and you will find that in the last resort not only "Love and Law," but "Love, Law and Life" are all the same, named with an Everlasting Name.

Uncommon Sense

JOHN BLAKE ON NAIVETE

THE other day I went out in a ferry. When the boat reached an open stretch of water the captain asked three youngsters who stood with their eyes riveted on the pilot house, if they would like to come up and steer. Two eagerly climbed up beside the wheel and, as they thought, helped the steersman keep the ferry on her course. It was a real treat, "something to tell dad about," as one youngster expressed it.

The third boy hung back. He was perhaps more eager to take a hand than his two companions. But he refused the captain's offer and set squirming with excitement, watching his friends. He took in every movement. Perhaps the excitement was just too much for him. He may not have trusted himself and so he held back and looked on with envy and fascination.

* * * *

A friend of mine took his little girl to watch a parade. As the marchers passed by she became more and more thrilled. She began to tremble with ecstasy. Finally when a particularly gorgeous drum-major came in sight she threw her arms around her father's neck and burst into tears. "It's just too wonderful! I can't stand it!" she told him between sobs.

Perhaps it is expecting too much of the human race to wonder why so many grown-ups lose all trace of childish enthusiasm with the years. But the contrast between some dead pans (and stuffed shirts) and excited kids is tremendous. It is hard to believe that some pompous fellows were once enthusiastic youngsters. And yet we all started out with enthusiasm and emotions. Somewhere along the path of life things went dead.

* * * *

Adults who delight us most are apt to have retained some of that naivete which youngsters possess in such large quantities. The grown-up who has come through all the trials of adolescence and early adulthood and preserved the ability to get excited has an exquisite charm.

For in a world of hypocritical, pompous, and jaded grown-ups the genius stands out very often because of his seeming childishness. At any rate he risks being thought childish when he displays great enthusiasm for things which wiseacres pretend are dull affairs. And when his delight is sufficiently strong and real he ends by charming us all.

* * * *

One reason why children are so generally appealing is because they have not that distrust of emotion which far too many grown-ups feel. They possess the philosopher's stone, the secret of happiness which only the sturdiest and wisest adults can preserve intact against the world's indifference.

The Town the World Will Be Watching Next Week

● "RADIATOR" DESCRIBES WHAT HE SAW OF NUREMBERG, WHERE THE BIGGEST NAZI RALLY IN HISTORY WILL ASSEMBLE NEXT WEEK TO HEAR HITLER'S EAGERLY-AWAITED STATEMENT ON CZECHO-SLOVAKIA.

The medal specially struck for this year's Nuremberg Congress. It bears a representation of youth and strength.

THE CRISIS in Central Europe has added to the importance of the Nazi Party Congress which opens at Nuremberg next week. The Fuhrer will speak, and all the world eagerly awaits his proclamation to the members of the party.

But the Congress will be one of the most outstanding in another respect. It will be the largest in the history of the National Socialist Movement. Over 800,000 members, including 60,000 Austrians, will attend the celebrations and will occupy 45,000 bedrooms, about 30 tent villages, a similar number of barracks, and over 400 marquees.

Preparations for the Congress have been going on for a long time past. I saw something of the work when I visited the town last week. The streets were studded with flagpoles of great height, but it was in the Congress Grounds that the greatest activity prevailed. Buildings and assembly places of gigantic size and unique construction are being erected, and will be magnificent specimens of the architectural style of the Third Reich.

I WAS shown over the hall in which the Congress is held pending the completion of the new building, but the Nazi officials thoughtfully motored us round the grounds, which are so extensive that it takes miles and miles of wire to link up the various loud-speakers.

One may wonder why Nuremberg, so far from the capital of the Reich, should be the venue of the Party rallies. The reason, I was told, is that it was a stronghold of National Socialism before other towns in Germany had hardly heard the name of Adolf Hitler. It was at Nuremberg in 1923 that National Germany appeared in public with a first powerful manifestation, and it was in the same year that the first great march past of members of the Party before their leader took place. Other gatherings were held later, and the Fuhrer then raised Nuremberg to the status of the town of the Party rallies.

Fully conscious of this high distinction, the city is endeavouring to give this new purpose an adequate frame by preserving and restoring the beauty of its ancient scenery, by erecting new buildings, widening the streets, and by making other improvements.

Visitors see many works already accomplished, or being carried out, but it is on the grounds of the Party rallies that the spectator gets the most conspicuous picture of the great events which take place every year during the pompous days of the Nazi gatherings.

THE Luitpold Hall, which is now used for the Congress, first served for exhibition purposes and later as an assembly place for political demonstrations. A few years ago it was rebuilt. At the front and the back powerful structures have been added and more efficient entrances provided. In addition a magnificent organ has been installed. The hall now contains 16,000 seats, but has standing room for 30,000 people.

During the Party rally the hall is simply and tastefully decorated and is crowded by enthusiastic Nazis. In the presence of the Fuhrer the large platform is occupied by leading members of the National-Socialist Movement and its branches, whilst in the background the standards of the Party are arranged.

IT is on the wide ground of the Luitpold Arena that the Party formations assemble before the Fuhrer. Hitler speaks to them from the platform in front of the grand stand and then walks down the broad pathway, which is kept free among the assembled formations, to the War Memorial to pay homage to the fallen. At the same time the bands play.

The final design of the whole arena is based on a personal sketch of the Fuhrer. The memorial of the town of Nuremberg for her fallen sons of the Great War is in the centre of one side of the arena. Opposite, the grand stand for the Fuhrer and the guests of honour has been built, and the rally ground can accommodate 150,000 men, while the stands hold 50,000 people.

The new Congress Hall when finished will serve for the meeting of the Party Congress. It will seat 40,000 persons, and the stage alone will hold 2,400 persons and about 800 standards. A partial model showing the true height of the future Congress Hall has been erected, and the monumental grandeur of the building-in-making is effectively expressed in this model.

The political leaders of the Party and the men of the Labour Service assemble on the Zeppelin-Field during the Party rally, and the display of the armed forces also takes place there pending the completion of the Marzfeld. The stands accommodate about 100,000 spectators and the field holds 250,000 people.

During the Party rally the Fuhrer speaks from the grand stand. There the flags of the movement, the guests of honour, the representatives of Party and State also find their places.

ONE now comes to the stadium which was awarded the gold medal at the Olympic Games in Amsterdam in 1928 on account of its model planning. The chief area of the stadium is used for sports events on a large scale. On the surrounding walls 56,000 spectators can stand while the stand itself has seating accommodation for 3,000 people. The stadium is now a part of the rally grounds. During the Party Congress it serves as an assembly place of the Hitler Youth before the Fuhrer. Then the walls and the wide arena are filled with youthful life, merry movement, and tremendous enthusiasm.

The buildings and assembly places which so far have been erected form only a part of the whole mighty planning; the greatest part of the grounds will be completed later. Work on the building site of the new Congress Hall has been started, and the extensive arena between the Luitpold-Arena and the future Marzfeld is under construction. There a road of gigantic dimensions will be laid. In a length of a little over a mile and a width of 295 feet it will be lined on both sides with granite steps.

THIS unique road will lead to the Marzfeld which will be built as the future parade and display ground of the armed forces. The Marzfeld, like the other assembly places, will be surrounded by stands. It will be five times as large as the Luitpold-Arena and its construction will take some years.

Opposite the Congress Hall an enormous building for meetings will be erected where, during the Party rally, the culture sessions will be held. The square between the Congress Hall and this building will be terminated by a huge exhibition hall, and in addition a gigantic sports arena will be built accommodating 250,000 spectators.

The colossal schemes now in progress outside the town are proudly described as the greatest in the world. It is expected that by 1943 the first stage will be completed, though it will be many years before Herr Hitler's grandiose ideas are fully clothed in marble and granite.

London Day By Day

The Brass Band Festival.
Interest in Championship.

LONDON, Saturday.

THE National Brass Band Festival, which opens at the Alexandra Palace later this month, is one of London's principal autumn events, and already bands all over the country are tuning up in preparation for the great "blow."

Once again the massed band contest, which every year brings the festival to a spectacular conclusion, is being conducted by Mr. John Henry Iles, who founded the festival 33 years ago. Mr. Iles, who recently lost £200,000 on a film venture, is chiefly known as a fun fair and amusement park king, but in spite of all his other interests he still remains faithful to the festival, which was one of his earliest "loves."

The test piece in the championship class this year is to be Percy Fletcher's "Epic Symphony." This piece was first issued in 1926, and was the last work Mr. Fletcher composed specially for the contest. It was the test piece of that year, and now 12 years later it has been revived.

The winners in 1926 were St. Hilda's, a Durham band, now extinct, so it will be up to the other bands from the North to try and carry on the tradition by supplying one of their number as the ultimate winners of the coveted distinction.

From Prison to Cabinet.

FEW of our present Cabinet Ministers can claim the distinction of having graduated to the innermost circle of Statesmen from the prison cell. Yet that is the achievement of the Hon. Mrs. Vijayalkshmi Pandit—the first and only woman Cabinet Minister in India.

Before she became well known as president of the Congress Party, Mrs. Pandit suffered two terms of imprisonment, totalling three years, during the civil disobedience disturbances.

Mrs. Pandit was included in the New Congress Ministry accepted by the Governor of the United Provinces in 1937. Three days after her appointment she was given the portfolio of Public Health.

As Minister in that office Mrs. Pandit has had a strenuous time in recent months, owing to the cholera epidemic that ravaged the Province. She toured the areas and worked very long hours in the organisation of relief and prevention of the spread of the epidemic.

Apart from her work in the Congress movement, Mrs. Pandit has been identified with the Women's Movement in India, and in former years took a considerable part in the organisation of Youth and Student Movements. She has just arrived in London for a six weeks stay, to improve her health after her strenuous task.

Indian Woman as Pioneer. Is Now Cabinet Minister.

Lucky to be Alive.

MAJOR Gerald Maxwell, M.C., D.F.C., was at Brompton Oratory with his wife yesterday afternoon for the christening ceremony of their infant daughter. Once a Great War ace, he is now a prosperous gentleman in the City, a stockbroker and a landed proprietor. He is one of many who served in the war who can say truthfully, "they are lucky to be alive."

He brought down 30 enemy aeroplanes, but he did not achieve all his many distinctions without some hair-breadth escapes. One of his most amazing adventures was when he was on patrol near Cambrai. When about 12,000 feet up his 'plane was hit in the engine and in the elevator control by anti-aircraft guns. He had to glide to earth with practically no control over his elevation.

He hit the ground cut up by trenches and shell holes at about 140 miles per hour. The front part of the machine, including the engine, broke clean off. The rest, with the pilot in it, went bouncing on another 100 yards or so. Spectators were amazed to see Major Maxwell step out uninjured.

A New Sphere.

MR. Lawrence Housman, at the age of 73, is seeking a new sphere to conquer. He has distinguished himself as artist, novelist, playwright, and poet, and now he is to aim at the Lord Rectorship of Glasgow University. He will have the support of the Peace Pledge Union, and, as the late Canon "Dick" Sheppard was successful under the banner of the Union, Mr. Housman may well achieve his latest ambition.

By theatrical people he is chiefly known as the author of "Victoria Regina," and in this he not only scored a great personal success but established records for theatre finance.

There is a ruling that no British monarch may be portrayed on the stage during his or her lifetime, or the lifetime of any children, and the censor's ban on Housman's "Episodes from the Life of Queen Victoria" was lifted 100 years after her accession.

At the Lyric Theatre the average takings were about £2,800 for the second week, while in America an average of £4,000 was attained.

Famous Horsewoman.

LADY Wright, wife of one of the Lords of Appeal, has once more been showing that she is still one of the finest horsewomen in the country by carrying off trophies at the Dorchester Show. FROM V.A.D. TO A.R.P.

WAR-TIME RESERVES OF BRITAIN.

1,500,000 MEN AND WOMEN

GIVE SPARE TIME TO MANY TASKS.

In increasing numbers Britain's civil population is responding to the call from the Government of the day to rally to the aid of the State on what is virtually a wartime basis.

There will probably be in the course of the next few months at least a million and a half men and women giving much of their spare time to all manner of tasks which they will have to perform if and when the nation becomes involved in war.

And their ages will be between 17 and 65.

A high place in hours given may be awarded to the 186,528 members of the Territorial Army, whose strength will, at the present rate of recruiting, be brought up to its full establishment of over 201,000 within a reasonable time.

In the end it is estimated that 100,000 of them will be engaged in anti-aircraft duties in London, the Home Counties, and at vital coastal areas.

One of the duties of this section of the Citizen Army will be to work the balloon barrage defences of London against raiding aeroplanes in time of war. There are 8,450 members of the new National Defence Companies, who replaced the Royal Defence Corps, and will protect from sabotage important points when war is threatened, or breaks out. They are all ex-Servicemen between the ages of 45 and 60.

Already about 500,000 men and women are giving their time to the task of learning their A.R.P. duties, and a great campaign will shortly be initiated by the Home Secretary for another 500,000.

500,000 WOMEN.

The Women's Voluntary Services, in which between 20 and 30 existing women's organisations, with large memberships, will co-operate, has only just been formed, but the thousands of injuries from aspiring workers is some indication of the enthusiasm. Their membership is expected to reach 500,000.

The Civil Air Guard will comprise men and women between 18 and 50 who will be trained as pilots ready for the emergency of war—and there is no limit to the number who may join.

Under the Air League Cadet Corps scheme 20,000 boys between 14 and 18 will be trained to assist in time of national crisis.

Newest of all these branches of National Service is the Civilian Wireless Reserve of the R.A.F., announced on the last day of August. About 7,000 wireless amateurs will be trained ready for war emergency, when they will place their services at the disposal of the Air Council.

Such old bodies as the British Red Cross Society, including the Women's V.A.D. and the St. John Ambulance Brigade, are part, of course, of all local air raid precaution schemes.

CAVALRY OFFICER'S DUEL.

WEAPONS TO BE SWORDS.

TO FIGHT ON A PRIVATE ESTATE.

The Duke of Brissac, head of one of France's most ancient families, and Gen. Voisin are to act as seconds in a duel which is to take place shortly on a private estate at Saumur. The challenger is a young officer of the Cavalry School at Saumar, M. Paul Albert, and he is fighting M. Rene Maissiet, who is a well-known horseman. They are using swords.

Both men are preparing strenuously for the encounter, and M. Paul Albert has the advantage of instruction from a champion fencer of France, M. R. Clery.

Duels between officers of the cavalry were common occurrences in pre-war days, but it is many years since one has taken place.

[This is the second duel to be fought in France this year. The first being at Neuilly, on the outskirts of Paris, in May, when M. Henri Bernstein, the novelist, fought M. Edouard Bourdet, director of the Comedie Francaise. Although this duel received great publicity, the police made no effort to stop it, for which M. Langerou, the Prefect of Police, was strongly criticised afterwards. The only official action was the banning of the motion picture taken of the fight.

THE LATE BR. S. R. GREER.

UNVEILING OF HEADSTONE

IN MAGHERAGALL CHURCHYARD.

The members of St. Aidan's Church Total Abstinence L.O.L. 1457 gathered in large numbers in Magheragall Churchyard, Lisburn, on Friday evening, when a headstone at the grave of Br. Samuel R. Greer, P.M., was unveiled and dedicated. The tombstone, which was erected by the members of the lodge, bears the following inscription:—"Erected by the members of St. Aidan's Church Total Abstinence L.O.L. 1457 in grateful remembrance of Br. Saml. R. Greer, P.M., who was for 43 years a member of the above lodge, W.M. 1909-1914, treas. 1916-1937. Fell asleep 8th August, 1937."

There was a short service at the grave conducted by Br. Rev. S. J. Greer, rector of St. Aidans, assisted by Br. Capt. Corr, Church Army, Magheragall.

Br. G. T. Taylor, P.M., said Br. Greer during his membership rendered faithful service in the lodge. In addition to holding two important offices in the lodge, he was treasurer of the No. 5 District for many years. Intensely interested in the juvenile movement, he was W.M. of the Sandy Row district, and County Grand Secretary of Belfast. He was a trustee of the Sandy Row Hall for a long term, and for over 20 years was secretary to the committee.

Br. Thomas Smyth, P.M., unveiled the tombstone, which had been draped with a Union Jack.

The tombstone was dedicated by Rev. S. J. Greer, who said Br. Greer was a man of sterling integrity of character, dogged tenacity of purpose, and a man of goodwill. No one more unhesitatingly gave of mind and heart to the Orange Institution.

Br. Herbert G. Greer, W.M. of St. Aidan's, and son of the deceased, returned thanks to the brethren for erecting the tombstone.

The service concluded with the singing of "O God our help in ages past" and the National Anthem.

The attendance included Mrs. Gallagher and Mrs. Dumigan, sisters of the deceased; Br. Fred Bridgett, J.P., W.D.M. No. 5 District; and Br. James Dunbar, W.D.M., of the Sandy Row No. 2 Juvenile District.

The officers of the lodge are:—W.M., Br. H. G. Greer; D.M., Br. David M'Clatchey; secretary, Br. George T. Taylor; treasurer, Br. James M'Kinless; chaplain, Br. Rev. S. J. Greer.

GHASTLY AMERICAN PRISON TRAGEDY.

EVIDENCE AT INQUEST.

"MEN SCREAMED IN AGONY"

THIRTEEN OFFICIALS CENSURED.

PHILADELPHIA, Friday.—The Coroner's jury investigating the deaths of the four convicts after steam had been injected into their cells, to-day found William B. Mills, prison superintendent; Frank Craven, deputy warder; nine guards, and two doctors guilty of criminal negligence

Mills and Craven were released on bail of 10,000 dollars each.

Others are being held without bail pending the sitting of the Grand Jury. The prosecution will ask for indictment on charges of homicide and manslaughter, according to indications from the District Attorney's Office.

Convicts who survived the steam punishment gave gruesome testimony. They said the stifling men screamed in agony, beat themselves against the walls of their cells and cried out for their wives and mothers as the heat became increasingly unbearable.

The Coroner's physician testified that the men died of "heat stroke."

The Deputy Coroner, in his address to the jury, recommended them to censure the 13 men.—Reuter.

FREIGHTER'S RADIO CALL

FOR MEDICAL ASSISTANCE.

VAIN EFFORT TO SAVE CAPTAIN.

A dramatic story of vain efforts to save the life of Captain Roberts, master of the Ellerman freighter City of Adelaide (6 589 tons,) with the help of radio, was told yesterday, when the Union Castle liner Athlone Castle and the Swedish vessel Klipparen, arrived at Capetown, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" correspondent. The City of Adelaide is due to-day

Exactly a week ago, when all three vessels were steaming towards the Cape, Captain Roberts collapsed on the bridge. He has been a sufferer from asthma for years. The wireless operator was ordered to communicate with a vessel carrying a doctor.

The Klipparen was 200 miles from the City of Adelaide when she picked up the signal. She carried no doctor, but called other vessels doing so. The City of Adelaide was unable to call them, because she had no short wave transmitter.

Captain Roberts's symptoms were described in detail, via the Klipparen, to the surgeon of the Athlone Castle. At least 12 messages were sent, but they were unavailing, and the master died on Monday and was buried at sea. He was 58, and unmarried.

LOST JEWELS WORTH £58,000

ABORTIVE CLAIM RECALLED.

The death, following an accident, is announced of a man who unsuccessfully claimed £58,000 from the British Government in compensation for jewels stolen from the British Consulate in Petrograd in 1918.

He was Mr. Charles Herbert Bucknill, aged 74, of 4 Playfair Mansions, Queen's Club Gardens, Kensington, and formerly of Petrograd, Russia. His death occurred on Thursday.

Mr. Bucknill made his claim against the British Government in the King's Bench, London, in April, 1930.

MR. BUCKNILL'S STORY.

According to his petition he deposited with the British Consul in Petrograd in April, 1918, jewels valued at more than £57,000 owing to the uncertainty of the situation.

In July the Consul, finding it difficult to communicate with the Foreign Office in order to obtain the money necessary for the discharge of his duties, requested Mr. Bucknill to place his property at the King's service. The jewels were locked in a leather bag, marked "A. W. Woodhouse," which was the name of the Consul.

On August 31 Soviet officials arrested Mr. Woodhouse, shot Captain Cromie, the military attache, and then slit open the bag and took away the jewels.

The Indemnity Act of 1920 prevented Mr. Bucknill from succeeding with his claim.

No redress was granted to him.

Mr. Bucknall, who was born in Russia, was a diamond merchant. He carried on business at Hatton Garden, London, and it was there that he met with a fatal accident by falling from a lift.

24 HOURS IN BRITAIN

DUTCH WOMAN REMANDED.

Titian haired, and dressed in neat black costume, a Dutch woman stood weeping in the dock at Liverpool Police Court on Friday, when a remarkable story was unfolded of an attempt on her part to go through with what was alleged to be a marriage of convenience 24 hours after she had landed in this country.

She was Elizabeth Winkens, aged 37, of 18 The Hague, Holland, and she was accused that, being an alien—namely, Dutch, she made a false statement that she met George Foo in a cafe in Rotterdam 16 to 18 months ago, and also that some months ago she had arranged to marry him on her obtaining a divorce.

Speaking through an interpreter the woman said she had £20 in her possession, and wished to engage a solicitor. She was accordingly remanded in custody for one day.

Mr. E. H. Sidgraves, prosecuting, said the woman was born in Germany, and she became Dutch on her marriage to Johannes Coenrad Pronk. She landed in Liverpool on August 28, and the following day went to Bolton Street Register Office, Liverpool, and made arrangements to be married by special licence on September 3. She described herself as the divorced wife of Johannes Pronk. As she had only landed in England from Holland the day previously the police were informed, and on August 31, the prospective bridegroom was interviewed by the police. He made a statement. Later the police interviewed the woman, and she told them she met her intended husband 16 months ago, and added—"I love him." Detective-Sergeant M'Kay told her there was reason to believe her statement was entirely untrue, and that she had not seen her prospective husband until she arrived in Liverpool on August 28.

The woman was then arrested, and when charged with the offence did not reply. There is no doubt, said Mr. Sidgraves, that this was to be purely a marriage of convenience for the purpose of obtaining British nationality.

G.S.R. WORKSHOPS.

THREE-DAY WEEK IS ANNOUNCED.

"IMPERATIVE" DUBLIN STEP

ALTERNATIVE DISMISSALS.

The announcement is made by the Great Southern Railways of Ireland that its workshops in the Dublin area are to be closed for a fortnight from Sept. 12.

When the workshops reopen the men will be employed on a three-days-a-week basis, as circumstances permit.

The notice, which is addressed to all the staff employed by the railway under shop conditions, is as follows:—

"In view of the serious financial position of the company, it is imperative that there must be an immediate reduction in the expenditure of all departments in order that the company's current liabilities shall be brought within its income during the remainder of the current year.

"Employes are notified that a part of the scheme to give effect to this stringent necessity involves the closing down of the company's workshops in the Dublin area for two weeks on and from 12th instant, and on and from that date all other workers employed under shop conditions in the company's employment, excluding shop staff in the chief mechanical engineer's department engaged in running repairs, will be employed on a weekly three-day basis.

"On the reopening of the company's shops in the Dublin area work on a weekly three-day basis will be available subject to prevailing circumstances."

Mr. D. O'Hanlon, secretary of the National Union of Vehicle Builders, said about 200 members of his union were involved. They had an agreement setting out a 47-hour week—otherwise five long days and one short. It was a serious matter, and might result in some serious developments.

He protested against the fact that officials of the union were not informed of the "turn in the situation."

It is stated that the alternative to the scheme outlined in the notice would be the dismissal of some 750 men.

Meetings of the unions concerned will be held to consider the position.

UNIONISM IN EAST BELFAST.

THE DEE STREET BRANCH.

ADDRESS BY MR. WARNOCK, M.P.

There was a large attendance of members at the opening meeting of the Dee Street Branch of Victoria Unionist "Parliamentary" Association held in the Unionist Hall, Dee Street, Mr. Joseph Morrison (chairman) presiding.

The Chairman, in welcoming those present, said it was their duty as Unionists to make sure that the Province of Ulster would remain an integral part of the British Empire.

After the transaction of routine business a number of new members were enrolled.

Mr. E. Warnock, K.C., M.P., referred to the war clouds which were now hovering over Europe. He compared the liberties of the people living under Dictator States and those who were living under democratic Governments. They in Ulster had a democratic Government, where the private member of Parliament could approach the Government with suggestions and ideas for better Government, while he in his duties could be approached by his constituents and local association.

Referring to social services, the speaker said Great Britain and Northern Ireland had social services which were the envy of many countries abroad. It was the intention of the Government to improve these services.

He (the speaker) had observed the spirit of goodfellowship which seemed to permeate this association. That was the proper spirit of Unionism, and it was a pity that more of it was not shown abroad.

Mr. David Thompson, a member of the Ulster Air Raid Precaution Committee formed by the Northern Government, gave a resume of the work done under the auspices of that committee. The thanks of Ulster people, he said, should be given to the St. John Ambulance Brigade and to the members of the British Red Cross Society for the splendid manner in which they had responded in this matter.

LITTLE SPANISH REFUGEES.

FIRST ULSTER CONCERT.

A NOTABLE SUCCESS.

The first of the series of concerts to be given in Ulster by the Basque children's troupe took place in the Co-operative Hall, Belfast, on Friday night, before a crowded house, and, judging by the high standard of the performance, the success of the tour is assured.

The concerts, which are being held to provide funds for the maintenance of the Basque child refugees during their stay in Great Britain, are under the auspices of the Northern Ireland Joint Committee for Spanish Relief, a body which has as its patrons the Earl and Countess of Antrim and the Marchioness of Donegall. The troupe is engaged to give several more performances in the city, after which they will visit Bangor, Portadown, Lurgan, and Newcastle.

The programme opened with a number which captured the whole spirit of Spain and awakened memories of a period when it was a land of sunshine instead of sacrifice. This was the chorus "Hermosia Patria Mia" (Beautiful Country of Mine), which was rendered with unsophisticated fervour by the children dressed in their native costumes.

It was difficult to realise that many of these youngsters had passed through the horrors of war and the agonies of dread which accompanied it. Judging from the way they sang on this occasion, the love of their homeland survives unabated.

All the items indicated in solo or ensemble the cultural heritage of the Basque country. They suggested characteristics of vivacious elation and of deep emotion and the grave and the gay were reflected alike with natural spontaneity.

One of the most delightful of all the terpsichorean numbers was "The Dance of the Weavers," which was redolent of life and picturesque charm.

Manolo, too, was enthusiastically applauded. His rendering of the Flamenco song—the song of Andalucia—was thrilling, and Puri, a girl of thirteen, sang sweetly of Old Saville.

The whole performance was interesting from beginning to end and the encouragement given to the talented refugees was only what they deserved. The appeal, too, was responded to by all.

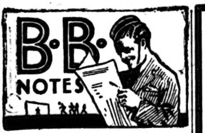
Miss Kathleen M'Colgan, the guide, philosopher, and friend of the young folk, spoke during the interval and explained that though Franco had offered to provide for the children in institutions the Relief Committee had pledged themselves to look after them till their parents were able to claim them again.

There were 1,600 such refugees in England and she felt sure that the people of Northern Ireland would rally to the assistance of those associated with the movement. The attendance that night and the welcome which the children had received was already evidence of the sympathetic response they hoped for.

PETTY OFFICER'S INVENTION.

Petty Officer Telegraphist Sidney R. Cook, of the Royal Navy, has been awarded a sum of £20 by the Lott Naval Trust Fund Committee for a new kind of wireless aerial he has invented.

This was announced in Admiralty Fleet Orders.



WINTER ACTIVITIES UNDER WAY.

PART IN CIVIC WEEK.

YOUTH NIGHT PROGRAMME.

THE COMING OF MAJOR STEVENS.

The all-too-short summer is now drawing to a close and already companies are starting their winter's work refreshed by the change of activity.

Many Company Bible Classes start to-morrow morning, and before very long they will be in full swing again. There is every evidence that plans are being made to make this winter's work the best yet. This is just as it should be, and it is trusted that complete success will attend all such efforts.

Companies are asked to make full use of B.B. Notes in maintaining the interest of the boys and their friends. The circulation of this column is wider than most realise, and it is read by very many people who have now no direct contacts with the Brigade.

Your boys, your parents and friends, and your Old Boys like to see an occasional reference to your company. Please see that they are not disappointed.

There is every indication that football will play its usual important part in the work of the new session. No fewer than 40 teams have applied for the use of public parks' grounds and as usual there are several more in the fortunate position of having grounds of their own. At the minute it is not possible to state what the total strength of the leagues will be, as companies have until Wednesday of next week, September 8, to complete entries, with an additional week on payment of a late fee.

The Belfast Battalion was represented on the committee responsible for the arrangements for the Belfast Civic Week. This, of course, is as it should be with an organisation that has for 50 years done work of incalculable value amongst the boys and young men of our city. It is not easy to estimate the influence of an organisation such as The Boys' Brigade on the citizens and leaders of the future. Some weeks ago an expert who has made a study of such matters told a meeting of Belfast officers that one never found past members in the crowds of youthful delinquents who come before our magistrates. Not only does The Boys' Brigade act as a deterrent against law breaking, but it is a positive influence for good towards law keeping.

THE CITY HALL PARADE.

It has been arranged that the Battalion will play an active part in two of next week's important Civic Week events. On Monday evening there is to be a parade past the Lord Mayor at the City Hall. This parade will be in two sections. The first will be a parade of the Imperial Services, and the second an athletic parade. The latter section is to include a team of B.B. boys in physical training costume. It has been arranged that these boys will assemble in May Street Church Hall on Monday at 7-15 p.m., and then proceed to the Markets to take their place in the parade, which is sure to attract large crowds.

On Wednesday evening two items will be supplied at the Youth Night Programme at Hazelwood. The first will be by a massed bugle band which has been rehearsing in sections for the past few weeks. This is quite a big undertaking as the band will be anything from 80-100 strong. Later in the programme the physical training display that has been in such demand this summer will be repeated. Girl Guides, Boy Scouts, and Church Lads' Brigade are also taking part in this programme, the purpose of which is to demonstrate the work of youth organisations in the city. The display arena will be flood-lit.

Battalion preparations are in hand to have early in the session a series of meetings and classes that will do much to inspire and help the work of the new session. The first of these will be a week-end conference commencing Friday, October 14, at which there will be important speakers, whose names will be announced in due course.

In the following week-end there will be a visit from Major F. W. Stevens, the Brigade's physical training adviser, who will conduct a short intensive course. It is quite some time since Major Stevens visited Belfast, and this week-end will be looked forward to with great keenness. Major Stevens is, of course, responsible for the Boys' Brigade physical training system which has proved so very successful. He is a real enthusiast in physical training work, and invariably conveys much of his enthusiasm to his classes.

This week-end will be followed by a series of classes for instructors in apparatus work, etc.

GOOD-BYE TO MR. JAMES RODGERS

The Area Life Boy Committee said good-bye recently to Mr. James Rodgers, area secretary, who has gone to a business appointment in London. Mr. Rodgers was a member of the Life Boy Committee for many years, and for the past few years was a most efficient and popular area secretary. A very cheerful letter was received from him at Boys' Brigade House this week. He says that his new employment is bringing him about London a good deal, and that he is now "beginning to know the difference between Trafalgar Square and the Marble Arch." He closes his letter by sending "his respects to anyone who may happen to ask after the Belfast exile." Mr. Rodgers' many friends in Belfast and district trust he will have great success and happiness in London, where his family hope to settle.

His successor as area secretary is Mr. George W. Whitten, leader-in-charge 3rd Belfast Team. Mr. Whitten was secretary of the Life Boy leaders' training course, and has now been given greater responsibility.

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC

SUCCESS OF BELFAST CENTRE.

In the list of successful candidates at the Trinity College of Music examinations held in Belfast during the first half of the year it is gratifying to note a still further increase in numbers. The Belfast Centre is amongst the highest in passes and the examiners have expressed their appreciation of the sterling quality of the work of the teachers.

The exacting requirements of these examinations set a very high standard, and make success all the more creditable to the teachers and pupils concerned.

ROBSON'S WEEKLY SALE.

BREEDING AND STORE SHEEP.

With an increased number of buyers in attendance bidding was keen at the weekly sale of breeding and store sheep held by Messrs. John Robson, Ltd., on Friday. The entries were comprised chiefly of crossbred and Wicklow-Cheviot ewes.

There were also several pens of blackface ewes and a number of lambs and ram lambs on offer. A stronger inquiry prevailed for suitable breeding sheep and every lot was sold.

A few of the sales recorded are as follow:—Mr. Robinson sold a pen of crossbred hogget ewes at 42s each. Mr. M'Allister sold a pen of 20 crossbred hogget ewes at 36s 6d each. His pen of 20 blackface ewes made 27s 6d each. Mr. F. Devlin sold 16 crossbred hoggets at 33s 6d Mr. W. R. Creswell, J.P., had two pens of Wicklow-Cheviot ewes which realised 33s and 34s respectively.

Several other lots of crossbred ewes made from 33s to 33s 6d per head. A few rams and ram lambs were sold from two to three guineas each.

DUBLIN TEACHER'S SUICIDE.

AFTER APPEARING IN COURT.

A verdict that death was due to drowning, self-caused during temporary insanity was returned at the inquest in Dublin last night on the 28-year-old Dublin teacher, Patrick Walsh, whose body was taken from the River Liffey that morning.

On the previous day Walsh had been charged at the District Court with abandoning his week-old child on the road near Navan, Co. Meath, and had been remanded.

That night while crowds of people were waiting on the Burgh Quay for buses Walsh mounted the parapet and jumped into the river.

Evidence of identification was given by Roger Kennedy, brother-in-law, who stated that Walsh was married, and was a national school teacher.

John Blood, City Quay, said he dragged the river with a grappling iron and found the body at 12-10 a.m. —two hours after.

Detective A. O'Connor, Dublin Castle, said on the previous day Walsh was remanded in the District Court to Wednesday next on a criminal charge brought by Detective Cryan and himself.

Edward Rooney, aged 18, said when he saw the man being carried away by current he threw off his coat, jumped into the river, and swam after him for about 30 yards, but the man sank when he was within a short distance of him. He dived twice, but as he was handicapped by his clothes and boots he failed to locate the body, and had to make his way to the quay wall.

The Deputy Coroner (Dr. J. P. Shanley) said it was possible that the charge hanging over Walsh had unhinged his mind.

NEXT WEEK'S GARDEN FETE

IN AID OF SICK ANIMALS' HOSPITAL.

The annual garden fete in aid of the Veterinary Hospital for Sick Animals of the Poor of Northern Ireland, Whiteabbey, will be held on Saturday, September 10, at 2-30 p.m. The honorary secretaries, Mrs. F. M. Holmes and Mrs. R. E. M'Lean, and staff are working very hard to make this fete a financial success, and if the weather is fine it will, as usual, prove a very enjoyable function.

As well as stalls for all kinds of saleable articles there will be a dog show by permission of the Kennel Club, also a balloon race, and other outdoor attractions.

PASSENGER LOST FROM LINER.

It was learned at Southampton that when the liner Empress of Britain was steaming up Channel late on Thursday night a tourist passenger, Miss Ethel Mary Idiens, aged 54, was presumed to be lost overboard.

Miss Idiens, who had come from Australia, had visited relatives at South Cerney, Cirencester, and was intending to visit a relative in Canada on the way back to Australia.

It is stated that the Canadian authorities suggested that for health reasons she should be accompanied if landing in Canada and she voluntarily decided to return to England.

BELFAST CITY MISSION.

THE WORK UNDER REVIEW.

A meeting of Superintendents and Missionaries of the Belfast City Mission was held on Friday evening in the Hostel Cafe. The following were present:—Messrs. F. J. Holland (in the chair), G. M. M'Neill, J. Taylor, J. Brown, R. Cairns, J. Price, S. Brown, T. J. Kinnear, O.B.E., Barrister-at-Law; J. C. M'Neill, D. Weyms, J. K. Wallace, T. Rainey, F. Mulligan (secy.), and 27 missionaries.

The company was entertained to tea by Mr. G. M. M'Neill. The meeting was opened by prayer, the Rev. J. Russell and Mr. W. Lynas leading.

Various aspects of the work were then considered and reports from eleven districts given. These showed that the missionaries were keeping in touch with the people of their respective districts. In the house-to-house visitation the missionaries brought comfort and help to homes where sickness and death had entered and to many lonely sufferers in the hospitals. A striking feature of the work was the large number of open-air meetings held in the back streets of the city. At these meetings some heard the gospel who never enter a church or hall.

Rev. J. Russell, a minister from Canada, expressed his thanks for the privilege of meeting with the directors and missionaries of the Belfast City Mission. He said that five of the most important years of his life were spent in the Sandy Row district on the staff of the Mission 40 years ago.

Messrs. R. Cairns, J. Price, S. Brown, T. Rainey, G. M. M'Neill and the president (Mr. F. J. Holland) spoke about the work.

Mr. J. K. Wallace and Mr. Leetch led in prayer and closed the meeting.

A Thriller Set In Spain

IN the realm of adventure fiction Mr. Wheatley has set himself a standard that demands the maximum of thrills and excitements, presented in a way that makes them seem feasible and even probable. None of his readers should be disappointed in "The Golden Spaniard," for it is as fine a yarn as he has yet given us.

A long, double-length novel, it makes ideal reading for either a sunny beach or a long evening by the fire. The scene this time is Spain; the time, the present day, and the hero is an old friend, the Duke de Richleau, and with him are the three modern musketeers, Simon Aron, Rex Van Ryn, and Richard Eaton. The Golden Spaniard is the name given to a young Spanish Red, an important figure in the Communist party, but who is in reality the Countess Lucretia Jose de Cordoba y Coralles, a fervent believer in Monarchist and Catholic Spain, whose whole life and upbringing had been directed towards the inevitable day when the Spain whose tradition was hers, would be in danger. Shortly before the military revolt she visits the Duke in London, and asks him, for the sake of his friendship for her father, to undertake a mission for her.

HEIRESS To Millions

AS heiress to the Coralles millions, she has a huge sum in gold lying in the vaults of the family bank at Madrid, set aside to be used in support of the old regime. Knowing that Franco's rising was being planned, and that at the outbreak of hostilities the Government would commandeer all the resources it could, she was anxious to have it removed from Madrid, the Government stronghold, before it would be too late.

Her idea was to make over the gold to a British subject, in the hope that as a neutral his property would be respected, and to leave it to his cunning and ingenuity to see that it reached the right quarters. The Duke enlists the help of his fellow adventurers in Russia, but only Richard can assist him. Simon, as a Jew, not only refuses to support a Fascist cause, but is already in active support of the Spanish Government, with Rex as his strong arm. So the Duke and Richard go alone to a tense, suspicious Madrid, the pending rebellion already an open secret, faced with the increasingly difficult job of removing ten tons of gold secretly out of a spy-ridden city.

Their adventures with this bulky fortune are a triumph of ingenuity and daring as their position becomes more and more perilous after the siege of Madrid, when their identities and purpose become known to the Government. The actual gold has as many changes of appearance as its two custodians, being in turn smelted down into the false bottoms of saucepans, made into bricks to build a hen-house, and finally dropped into the sea as bombs, until it seems that even Mr. Wheatley's fertile imagination must be exhausted.

AUTHOR'S Vivid Pen

THE author's vivid pen gives a most realistic picture of what are now every-day happenings in the unhappy country, where the wildly romantic adventures and hairbreadth escapes of the two Englishmen may very well have been reality. Contemporary events give the story a more than topical interest, while the viewpoint of both parties is sincerely represented in the sympathetic characters of Countess Lucretia, believing in the past and all that Spain once stood for, and in Don Calvos, the Spaniard of the future, the young Red leader, whom she loves. There is never a dull page in the whole 420, and the short summaries of the Spanish situation are clear to even the most uninformed reader.

After reading "The Golden Spaniard" it is good to realise that romance and adventure flourish as much in our day as they seemingly did when the Scarlet Pimpernel laughed his way out of Paris.

A Book of Short Stories

Neil Bell (Collins, 7s 6d.)

A volume of short stories, to read at a sitting, is invariably disappointing. For every hundred really good novels there is only one equally good short story, and a list of the 20 best short stories in English literature would change little from year to year.

Whether it is because of this, or in spite of it that we always approach a new collection hopefully inspired by the thought that here, perhaps, will be something new and unusual, is a matter of opinion. Neil Bell writes a light-hearted and amusing introduction to his book of short stories, giving his verdict on his own creations. His choice of what constitutes the best of them is to one reader at least rather surprising, but everyone can form their own opinion as to their merits.

Unfortunately, the fact of being a capable novelist does not insure an equal facility when writing a short story. Some of Mr. Bell's stories have the common fault of being forced, over dramatic, and occasionally pretentious. He is at his best writing of ordinary things and people.

The best of the collection, and these are excellent, are the Smallways stories—the author describes them as episodes—dealing with incidents in the lives of an ordinary family living in an ordinary suburb and bringing up their very ordinary children. These little human episodes are quite perfect of their kind.

Bees at Sea

by Alexander Bone

SHERLOCK Holmes and Maeterlinck, I believe, knew all about bees. But neither of them was aboard the barque Casablanca, trading between New Zealand and Australia, which was unfortunate for the ship's company.

We were delayed for about two months at Kohukohu, up the Hokianga River, in New Zealand, owing to a shortage of Kauri pine which we were loading for Sydney. So the bees had plenty of time to build their hive under the steel plate which covered our main topmast head, with an inch or so of space between the plate and the masthead.

No one discovered that they were there until we had cast off from the timber company's wharf, and hands were sent aloft to make sail.

The Hokianga River isn't very wide, and no courses are set in navigating the upper reaches: the helmsman needs a clear view of the river.

We got out head sails and the two lower topsails on her before the enemy was discovered.

* * * *

TORRY, an ordinary seaman, who had stayed in the cross-trees to overhaul the upper topsail buntlines, was the first casualty. He came sliding down a top-gallant back-stay, screaming, with a dozen or so of the angry bees stuck to his face.

Two hands on the top gallant yards unfurling the sails didn't encounter the bees till they were on their way down. Then they met the full fury of the swarm as they came over the cross-trees and reached the topmast head.

One fell into the top. Fortunately he wasn't hurt much except for the bee stings. The other, like Torry, slid down a back-stay, cursing dreadfully (he was an able seaman) and vowing he was blinded.

"Bees!" said the Old Man, and "Mister," he said to the Mate, "there'll be honey up there. Shift the bees and get the plate off the masthead. Man, won't some of these bee-keepers up at Kohukohu be mad about this? They've just started the honey business up there and imported the bees from Melbourne.

"Yes, Sir," said the Mate, "but how do we get rid of the bees? Nobody aboard knows anything about bees."

"Easy enough, Mister, easy enough. Put some mosquito netting over your head and wear gloves. Smoke them out with some of the Second Mate's cigars. They should fix anything.

"Yes, Sir," answered the Mate, and passed the order on to me. "We'll hear nothing but bee-keeping for the rest of this voyage, Second; last voyage it was sheep farming the old idiot was giving the sea up for; now it will be bees."

* * * *

I PASSED the order on to the Bos'n, but I didn't give him any of my precious manillas.

"Aye, aye, Sir," said the Bos'n. He didn't seem very keen about it. "But something will have to be done about these men's faces. They're swollen up awful, Sir, an' I doubt if you will get any of the hands to tackle the bees. Orders is orders, Sir, but it don't say anything about bees in the articles."

We did what we could about the men's faces with iodine and other remedies from the ship's medicine chest. The skipper had to use his own discretion, as it says nothing about bee-stings in "The Ship's Captain's Medical Guide," though there are pages of all sorts of afflictions which no one ever gets in the inter-colonial trade.

We had hoped that the bees would leave us as our ship left the land, but not a bit of it. Luckily the weather, all that passage, was grand and the wind held steady. Apart from tightening up sheets, halyards and braces we left the mainmast severely alone.

Then the Mate discovered one morning that the gallant buntlines had to be overhauled—they were tight and chafing the cloths to pieces.

He sent the most unruly boy in his watch to do it, and thereby discovered a means of maintaining discipline, which was never very strict in the inter-colonial service.

The boy was reluctant to go, but an order's an order. No one ever saw him go up the topmast rigging and over the crosstrees as quickly before. Still, the bees got in a couple of stings, and thereafter anyone who had a job of work above the main top went to it with gloves and an improvised helmet of mosquito netting.

* * * *

THE Old Man got a bit anxious about the size of Torry's head and put off his desire for honey, though hardly a watch passed without his telling the Mate or me about the bees he was going to keep on his sheep farm when he gave up the sea.

Before we were half-way to Sydney everyone was rather worried about Torry and one of the A.B.'s.

Torry's eyes were closed, his mouth, which had always seemed to us to be more than large, looked quite small, and his nose had reached a size and hue which would have done credit to Ally Sloper. His neck bulged out dreadfully. We were all afraid of what the bees had done to him.

So we sailed across the Tasman Sea before a gentle easterly breeze, all avoiding the mainmast like a plague and praying that we would not have to reduce sail.

The Mate discharged his shotgun at the topmast head one Sunday afternoon in a fit of temper. He let go both barrels hoping to dislodge the bees, but it only brought out an angry swarm which droned and buzzed round the mast once or twice and then went home again. But they weren't any more angry than the Old Man was when he came on deck and saw the mess the Mate had made of the lower t'gansail foot; properly peppered it was.

* * * *

OUR prayers were answered. We didn't have to reduce sail and we sighted the Australian coast well to the southward of Sydney Heads fourteen days after leaving the Hokianga.

The bees left us as we neared the South Head in the size and formation of a football. We were glad to see them go.

Three days afterwards in port we lifted the plate from the topmast-head, and there was the honeycomb but, much to the Old Man's disappointment, there was no honey. The comb was as clean as a biscuit barge at the beginning of the first dog-watch.

One thing Mansen, the Mate, wanted to know was how the bees knew we were bound for Sydney, where most of the Australian honey then came from. Perhaps they had been shipped to Kohukohu from Sydney, and had stowed away for home aboard our barque.

There was something I wanted to know myself. I wonder if Mr. Holmes and Mr. Maeterlinck could have told me.

Do bee-stings give people mumps? Because that is what the port medical officer said was wrong with Torry when he put the ship in quarantine.

A PLAIN MAN'S SERMON

Does Work Make You Grumble?

THE prolonged drought of the Spring has resulted in an early harvest in Britain this year. Harvest thanksgiving services, therefore, will be held somewhat earlier than usual, since, if they are deferred too long after the ingathering of the harvest, they lose very much of their point.

The law of life is that only as the result of unremitting, and often painful, toil can we continue to exist upon the earth.

"In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread." This quotation from the Book of Genesis is part of the sentence passed by God upon Adam for his disobedience.

"Cursed," says God, "is the ground for thy sake; in toil shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life; thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee, and thou shalt eat the herb of the field."

By "the herb of the field" is meant such vegetation as needs to be cultivated and kept free from weeds, as distinguished from the fruit of the trees, which matures, as a rule, spontaneously.

★

MAN'S Punishment

THE Hebrew word used for the "toil" to which mankind is henceforth condemned is one which really means "pain"; and so we get the idea of painful toil.

The painful toil is the law of life for man is plain enough; but whether the law which ordains that only in the sweat of his face shall he eat bread is to be regarded as a curse is a more open question.

Indeed, so far from its having been a curse, may we not say that actually it has proved to be well-nigh the greatest of mankind's blessings.

Monday morning will see the great majority of us setting out again to face the toil to which, willy nilly, we are driven by the iron necessity of the struggle for existence; and perhaps we sometimes wish that we could be set free from this inexorable law of work, this ceaseless treadmill.

Why has not God made human life easier? Why are perpetual toil or starvation the alternatives between which we are compelled to choose?

We know how lowly are the origins of man—how very little removed from the brute creation were the first inhabitants of this planet who could be described as human. Looking back across unnumbered centuries, how amazing is the advance which we see that he has made, and how unlimited, to all appearance, is his development which is yet to come.

To what is it due?

Simply to this struggle for existence—this law of eating bread only in the sweat of his face—which forced him to develop a brain, a will, a character, or else remain for ever at the level of the brute creation.

★

THIS Is No Eden

WITHOUT this inexorable necessity, without a battle to wage against nature, difficulties and hardships to be met and overcome, what would have been man's history.

A world in which this law of life did not prevail would have been a world in which this being whom we call "man" could never have evolved. In those lands where a favourable climate and a prolific and teeming Nature makes existence all too fatally easy for those who inhabit them, character remains at a low level, enterprise is non-existent, and mentality backward. It is the price paid for the absence of the struggle for existence, of the need for hard work and of difficulties to be surmounted.

The unhappy experience of widespread unemployment has made us alive to what is the real evil and grave danger of such a state of things. Even more serious than the sufferings which it brings to those who are unfortunate enough to be workless, is the deterioration of character which is its inevitable product.

Many people have a vision, with which we are naturally inclined to sympathise, of days to come when the increasing efficiency of machinery will have reduced the hours of work and lengthened the hours of leisure for all who earn their daily bread in the sweat of their face.

But it is not at all certain that a people with more time and less work on their hands will, of necessity, be a happier people; and if a position were ever reached where people had more leisure than they knew how to use wisely and profitably, there might be a real danger of our witnessing a marked deterioration in the national character.

The next time that we feel inclined to grumble about our daily toil, we might do worse than to give God thanks that we have got it to go to.

The Murphys Have a Royal Background

THIRTEEN titles of the ancient Irish nobility survive and are still borne by the heads of the respective families. But they do not include Murphy. Yet the Murphys could trace themselves back to kings if they wished, and they were assuredly lords in county Wexford when:

> "Each man ruled his own tribe,
> But no man ruled Erin"

The name meant a sea-dog in just the sense that we sometimes refer to Drake and Rayleigh as sea-dogs of the Elizabethan age. The first of the name was Muircath, and Murphy is only one of the changes the surname has sometimes undergone. It is often found as Morphie, while a familiar Scotch form has been Murphie. Antiquaries may be pardoned their playful moments.

* * *

The erudite Lower, noting the discovery of Murphie, among Scottish family names, suggests that it was an allusion to the popular nickname for the potato—Murphies! Of course no one would take that seriously. The Murphys and Murphies reached Scotland by way of the Irish sea.

The name has a legendary romance of the days of the kings in Ireland; also it has been a notable name in the whole Empire for at least four centuries—producing fighters and theologians and merchant princes. All who know their Boswell will recall Arthur Murphy, who was born at Roscommon but came to London to prepare for the Bar, and make his reputation as a dramatist.

Once Boswell tells us that Johnson, "speaking of Arthur Murphy, whom he very much loved, said, 'I don't know that Arthur can be classed with the very first dramatic writers; yet at present I doubt much whether we have anything superior to Arthur.'"

* * *

There have been two baronetcies of the name created during the present century. Sir James Joseph Murphy had been a notable figure in Dublin civic life and was chairman of the Royal Bank of Ireland. His brother, Sir Michael Murphy, also a first baronet, was head of a big ship owning enterprise and took a leading part in developing the shipbuilding industry in southern Irish ports.

His son, Sir George (Francis) Murphy is the present holder. The Hon. Thomas Murphy has been Minister of the Interior in the Canadian Cabinet. For many years the Hon. Charles Murphy was Postmaster-General of the Dominion. Both statesmen were the sons of Irish parents who had emigrated to Canada.

Mr. E. S. Murphy, K.C., Northern Ireland Attorney-General, another instance of distinguished family traditions in the law; he was the son of the Rt. Hon. Mr. Justice Murphy. He was called to the Irish Bar 35 years ago, and just 20 years ago became a K.C. His brother, Mr. Harold Murphy, K.C., is a leading member of the English Bar.

THROAT INFECTIONS

THE chief signs of tonsillitis are feverishness and pain in the throat, aggravated by swallowing. Frequently, yellowish spots are seen on the tonsils. In other cases there is a general redness and swelling of the throat, and this is a typical early sign in scarlatina.

When quinsy is present, there is an abscess round the tonsil, a very painful swelling being seen on one side of the throat. Removal of the tonsils prevents further attacks.

The most dangerous common infection is, of course, diphtheria, in which case there is a dirty greyish membrane on the throat, but not much pain nor fever at first. In all cases of sore throat medical advice should be obtained at once.

Summer Wreckage

Salvage Your Complexion.

SKINS which looked lovely glistening with sea-water are now beginning to fade and to appear as dingy and dull among the new autumn clothes—and more especially against the beautiful colours of your first evening frock of the season.

But bleaching processes have to be done with care and patience, for quick bleaching treatments when carried out by amateurs are apt to be too drastic, and often dry the skin and wrinkle it into the bargain.

If, however, you are very anxious to have your skin lily-white at the earliest possible moment, then you will find that the bleaching process done by a beauty expert in a good salon can be an amazingly quick and at the same time a safe process

In Three Pots.

For home treatment you will need a pot of skin food, a pot of bleaching cream (made by one of the really reputable manufacturers), and also a pot of circulation cream.

The face and neck should first be cleansed, either with cleansing milk, lotion, cold cream, or whatever you are in the habit of using. Then a layer of skin food should be massaged into them.

AFTER ten minutes or so, wipe off some of the skin food and spread over the face and neck the bleaching cream. Shoulders, arms and back may have the bleach spread over them without the soothing aid of the skin food unless the skin is unduly sensitive.

The bleach should be allowed to stay on the skin for 10 or 20 minutes, according to its potency, and then it should be removed by cotton wool, soaked in almond oil, and afterwards by tissues.

Alternative Nights.

On alternate nights the skin should have a similar treatment, but the circulation cream should be used instead of the bleaching cream after the skin has been cleansed and softened by skin food.

These circulation creams are excellent for working up the circulation of the blood and helping it to clear the skin and give it new life and sparkle—which it probably needs very badly during the "dingy" stage of the bleaching process.

When you are bringing your skin back to its natural colour, do not forget to give a little extra attention to your hands. It is a good plan to mix a little bleaching cream with your hand cream at night during the next week or two.

London Diary of an Ulsterwoman

The QUEENS of LOVELINESS

WILL ULSTER LEAD?

MISS Maud Clarke, the Ulster Linen Queen stood out amongst the twelve girls chosen in London this week as "Queens of Loveliness." She was paid the rare compliment of being selected without any competition. I thought she compared very favourably with her more sophisticated colleagues on this side. They all had make-up on, hair done in the very latest fashion, and Maud, who does not use make-up at all, looked very sweet and simple beside them. If she should be chosen as the Queen of the Queens of Loveliness at Olympia in November, it is quite on the cards that the Irish Linen Guild will send her to the World's Fair at New York.

IT is expected that she will do more sketching while in Kenya. The Duchess of Kent, using charcoal mainly, is another whose work has from time to time been on exhibition. Miss Molly Bishop is known to a fairly wide public as a portrait painter. She has done a painting of her fiance.

What a week it has been over here! Cold and gloomy, women in fur coats, fires in most homes. Even the cold though, is preferable to the dullness, the general feeling of depression.

Let us though get away from the gloom if we can, and follow the activities of some of those who have managed to follow the sun. You may remember that a few years ago one of the most debated subjects in newspaper columns was whether husband and wife should take their holidays apart. In print, anyway, it led to many hard words.

SIR Richard Sykes, who has received the request from the German Embassy in London to remove a carved figure of German soldiers from the Wagoners' Reserves Memorial at Sledmere, is a brother of the Countess of Antrim. Their father, Sir Mark Sykes, designed the monument and—a somewhat ironic touch here—an Italian, Carlo Magnoni, was the sculptor. Lord and Lady Antrim are at present at their Ulster home.

The Duke and Duchess of Kent are still on holiday, but I hear that a very full programme has been mapped out for them during the coming season. There are not many of us who could stand up to the constant round of formal dinners with speeches, the opening of wings of hospitals, the receptions, the visits to industrial centres, the receiving of purses, etc., as do the members of the Royal family. We don't often think of it that way, I know, but consider what a succession of formal events with the limelight focussed on you would mean to you personally. Do you think you would enjoy it?

In the meantime Maud is wishing that she could see a bit of London. This week she was here for the day only, and as most of it was spent getting ready for the competition, she naturally only saw what she could from the windows of a bus. The thrill of having been selected the Ulster Linen Queen is still with this girl, who takes her job quite seriously and yet manages thoroughly to enjoy it. She talked to me with great enthusiasm of her aeroplane trip last week when she went to Manxland for a carnival. There is no need to tell her not to get blase, or on the other hand get "puffed up with pride." She strikes me as being much too sensible for that. Here is wishing her the best of luck for Olympia!

Royal Artists.

The marriage of the Duchess of Gloucester's brother, Lord George Scott, and Miss Molly Bishop will, it is thought, take place before Christmas. It will add another artist to the Royal circle. The Duchess of Gloucester, who is at present in Kenya with the Duke, has done a lot of water colours, some of which have been exhibited.

Now the subject which would lend itself to discussion is: Should parents and children take their holidays apart? I never quite believed that many couples did holiday apart; I have proof that many parents and their offspring do. I spoke to an official at a children's hotel about it.

Children's Hotels.

"Oh, yes," she said in a matter-of-fact voice, "we have lots of children here because their parents have gone away on holidays."

One child is there for a month while its mother and father have a look at Canada; one baby of a few weeks old was brought in so that its mother could go away and recuperate. All those old-fashioned visions of children building castles while their parents dozed in deck chairs have vanished. Parents are not what they were, I thought. Nor are children. Is the change good for both or either of them?

Celebrations in Holland.

Although it is actually not until next Wednesday that Queen Wilhelmina celebrates the fortieth anniversary of her Coronation, already festivities have begun in Holland. The Queen is very popular with her people, and so, too, are her daughter, Princess Juliana, and son-in-law, Prince Bernhardt. The Queen succeeded to the throne when she was only ten years of age, and she has the distinction of having ruled longer than any other European sovereign. Amongst those who have arrived in Holland to pay greetings to her are six Sultans from the Dutch East Indies.

PILLOWS AND CUSHIONS

IN order to conform to the present air of luxury—whether real or simulated—in one's surroundings, the latest cushions and pillows are extremely dainty and attractive. They are obviously intended for use as well as ornament, too, for, in most instances, the covers can be removed and washed or dry cleaned.

This is especially true of the many kinds of pillows for the bedroom—not the orthodox type, the coverings of which are chosen to match the sheets, but the small odd pillows which give just that little extra support at the back of the neck, the shoulders, or the small of the back, or which add the extra height you may like for your head sometimes.

I have seen heart-shaped pillows covered with rows and rows of lace-insertion sewn together and edged with lace frilling. The shape is easily cut out of pillow ticking, filled with feathers, and then covered with a second slip which shows beneath the lace.

Organdie, too, as well as washing ninon and muslin are all used for these pillow-slips, and often the under slip is of brightly coloured crepe-de-chine or taffetas which shows faintly through the top covering

Paler crepe-de-chine slips are covered with open-work sheer fabrics, or with plain organdie or muslins, trimmed here and there with a scrap of open-work embroidery.

Quilting is another simple yet lovely method of decorating the larger type. Here again circular pillows, made of two circles joined by a strip of fabric around the sides, are often seen. "Half-circles," too, lend themselves to this type of ornamentation, again with the straight strip joining the back and front portions.

A new type of pillow is shaped like a large, triangular wedge. It is very versatile, and extremely comfortable to use, when you are reading or breakfasting in bed. The right-angled corner of the "wedge" fits between your bed head and pillow, while your head and shoulders are supported against the third, and longer side.

These larger pillows, may, of course, be covered in almost any fabric, such as linen, organdie, muslin, and pastel coloured flowered chintz or one of the artificial silk materials.

"Just Be Human" With Your Motor

That Is Suzette's Advice

ARE you really going to get a car? Of course, I will tell you all about it, what to do, what not to do. Just be human, first and last. First of all, give the car a name, don't talk about it in the abstract as "the car." I call mine "Victoria Regina" after the great Queen, hoping its reign may be as long, as peaceful and as dependable. Of course it is "Vickey" for short.

Then learn to drive, and learn all about the rules of the road, all about putting out your hand and waving people on and off and that sort of thing.

Don't try to know too much about the inside of the car, it would only depress you; you would then realise not only what would happen but what could happen. Get a good garage and leave it to the "garagers." Women, not being so mechanically-minded as men—at least I'm not—don't have the same trouble with cars as men do. For one thing they don't tinker with the engine and look important, they just drive the car, and after all, that's what a car is really for.

THEN when you get your car do be careful about parking. Don't ever blame the police; they are most awfully decent. In fact, when you have left your car outside a shop feeling sure ten minutes would buy the hat, and when you find dear Murial is also buying a hat, and of course you pretend you are only looking at scarves and gloves. You wait, of course, to see what kind of an atrocity she will buy, and then you buy your own, and come out pleased and excited—but it does take more than ten minutes.

There is a "Robert" just by your car with his little penny notebook. A look of sorrow is on his face and in his voice a sound of suffering as he says:

"You know you shouldn't be here more than ten minutes and it's now"—he looks at the wee book—"half an hour."

Of course you are full of explanations and ignorance of the Law, and he says with great kindness you won't do it again you will remember.

The R.U.C. Have So Many Notebooks!

In fact, once you start driving you will, like me, realise the cause of traffic congestion, and various other road troubles. I found it all out quite simply. The men who designed buses, lorries, furniture vans and things like that designed them for roads like the Great West Road out of London, which the Romans made and we have improved on for centuries. Our vehicles, it seems to me, were not built and designed for the ordinary roads they have to travel on.

When you drive from Downpatrick to Saintfield behind a furniture van you will realise the truth of my remarks. So the only thing to do is to scrap all these cumbersome road vehicles and rebuild them on new and more narrow lines to suit the lady drivers. Buses should have three seats to one side, and one gangway. Lorries could be lengthened and narrowed. Then there would be room to pass.

Next there should be a tax of a shilling a year on bicycles, just as a matter of principle so that the cyclist too would be responsible for the upkeep of the road and respect it, and the motorist would respect the cyclist as a co-taxpayer. Tax-paying is a wonderful bond, and everybody would be much happier. Of course these are simple solutions that would solve problems, so the politicians couldn't be expected to think of them; they have left that to me!

You are converted at once, never, never again will you leave your car, at least not outside that shop. Really the police are "wonderful" as the film actresses say, and if only the more sour ones—there are a few—would realise how much more good they can do by kindness and advice than by taking names and numbers what a nice world it would be!

Observe these new regulations in town require a lot of study. I find the best thing to do is to take your car to the railway or up to the Cave Hill, park it, and then take a bus or tram into town to do my shopping. It's really very simple when you want to help the Law.

Driving a car is also simple. Remember, don't consider any other driver intelligent until you have proved it. Change gears frequently and always be ready to start when the orange light appears. Of course, make sure it is changing to the green sign "go" and not to the red "stop!" That is really most important.

I need hardly write ALWAYS have a MASCOT in your car. Then do learn how to change a wheel. That is not mechanism, and once you start some "Knight of the Road" will, I hope, come along and finish the job for you. Still you can't just be certain. Be sure you have plenty of petrol, oil and water, then off you go and explore the countryside. The world is yours!!!

NO TROUSERS "OUT" IN HOLLYWOOD,

SAYS FASHION DESIGNER.

GIRLS OF TO-DAY LACK FIGURE.

Hollywood's Number One fashion designer, Miss Edith Head, arrived in London from Paris on Friday evening, and she had something to say about young ladies of this country.

"Girls of to-day just haven't any figure," she declared, and Miss Head should know, for she has been with Paramount for 14 years dressing them. Her present month's holiday is the first she's had in that time.

Miss Head said that her intention was to tour Europe, and especially this country, in order to get "atmosphere" to enable her to design the costumes for several films which are to be made in Hollywood with British settings.

Miss Head said that of all the stars in Hollywood, the easiest to dress was Carole Lombard, and Gail Patrick rated a good second. Women, she contended, were becoming increasingly interested in dress designing, and were inquiring into its technicalities more than ever.

There was one subject on which she would not talk, however. Trousers! "No trousers are out in Hollywood," she declared, "unless you count the little girls on the beach. The stars have not worn them for nearly a year."

"I'm here to get atmosphere," she continued, "and I mean to get it. I want to look at Scotland Yard, for we have to reproduce the buildings and surroundings so many times in Hollywood that it is time we knew what it looked like. When I return we start shooting on a film called 'Bulldog Drummond v. Scotland Yard,' and there musn't be any slip-ups. I can remember a film five years ago in which the male star, in order to call at Scotland Yard, jumped on the Flying Scotsman. Hollywood has never forgotten the number of letters which arrived when that film was released."

Special care has to be exercised, according to Miss Head, when making "Period" films. "When I left Hollywood, she said, "films were being made in the time of 1840, 1860, 1904, 1932, and 1937. We had to make certain that the costumes didn't get mixed up. Technicolour, too, has increased our work. Purple, for instance, turns yellow under an arc lamp, whilst other combinations of colours practically obliterate the screen.

DRIVER'S BODY FAST FOR FOUR HOURS.

"FATALITY SQUARE."

ANOTHER CRASH AT DANGER SPOT.

So many accidents have occurred at a danger point down a hill in Blackeney, near Lydney, Gloucestershire, that it is now known as "Fatality Square."

Thirty lorries have been involved in crashes at this point, and a house has been struck five times there.

To-day another lorry which descended the hill crashed into the same house. The driver, Henry John Andrews, of Blendon Road, East Street, London, was killed, and his companion, Louis Albert Bell, of the same address, badly injured. The driver's body could not be extricated for four hours.

In the last accident at the spot, a boy was killed.

Saturday Commentary by

Lady Oxford and Asquith

I Tripped—and Thus Began My Friendship with a Great Man

Lord Carson, Sir Oliver Lodge, and Lord Balfour. My friendships with them were the origin of what in later years were called "the Souls."

I WAS sad to leave North Berwick, where I have spent many of the happiest years of my life—if not in the town, at any rate in the vicinity. Nor do I know a more perfect place in which you can spend an autumn holiday.

My home, Glen, and its beautiful Border surroundings—packed as they are with associations of Sir Walter Scott, Wordsworth, and the Ettrick Shepherd—is within two hours' motor drive from Glenconner cottage, where I have been staying, and Dalmeny, Gosford, and Whittinghame are even nearer.

Before I married, I made life-long friendships with the interesting men and women whom I met in these famous country houses. These friendships were the origin of what in later years were called "the Souls."

TWO BECAME PREMIERS

TWO of my hosts, Lord Balfour, and Lord Rosebery, became Prime Ministers, and among them were many men of distinction, such as Lord Haldane, Lord Carson, George Wyndham, Sir Oliver Lodge, and others who made their mark.

I met an even rarer and more remarkable man, who had a greater and more enduring influence upon my life—the Master of Balliol, the famous Benjamin Jowett.

While watching the reels and waltzes ten days ago at the Gosford ball, I recalled the first time I ever met the master. It was in the days when what was called "skirt dancing" was fashionable, and, as it was my only accomplishment, old Lord Wemyss asked me to dance to them after tea. Everyone changed their clothes when they returned from shooting or golfing, and tea-gowns were of greater importance than dinner dresses when you stayed in country houses.

GAVE BENEVOLENT SMILE

HAD I known that the old Earl would ask me to dance, I would have worn a more appropriate garment, as my skirt was too tight, and in the course of my dance I caught my foot in the hem, and fell at the feet of an elderly grey-haired gentleman sitting in an obscure corner of the ball-room. At which I ejaculated a loud "damn!"

Looking up I said: "I'm sorry; I'm afraid I've shocked you, as I see you are a clergyman."

Jowett (for this was the elderly gentleman) gave me a benevolent smile, and said: "I am not at all shocked: pray go on." This was the beginning of a friendship which lasted until the day he died; his letters are among my most precious possessions.

HOW WE SHOULD BE JUDGED

I have even closer associations with North Berwick. My father owned Glenconner, which now belongs to my step-mother (Mrs. Lubbock), and my brother, Frank Tennant, and his talented wife have a lovely villa which would not be out of place in any town in Italy.

To look at the exterior of this house, opposite the Marine Hotel, would give you little idea of the wonders within; and I do not know any more lovely little garden or finer drawing-room than that which my brother Frank and my sister-in-law have created at Hyndford.

Mrs. Balfour Melville—the widow of the great Scots games player in St. Andrews—dined and golfed with me and my son several times at Glenconner.

The night before I left I said to her that it depressed me to be with people who seldom praised, but were always crabbing those with whom they associated.

I felt that although it was a handicap for anyone in life to have no critical faculty, since it prevented one from ever being a good judge of character, it was almost equally unfortunate only to see what was wrong. We should be judged by our characters, not merely by our conduct.

Mrs. Balfour Melville then told me that she came of a large and argumentatively quarrelsome family, but they had a religious and remarkable nannie, and one day when her brothers and sisters were carping and criticising each other, she said: "Children, God gave us eyes, but He also gave us eyelids."

This is a saying worth recording, and I hope that when I am too severe upon the actions, or characters, of those I am talking about, I shall remember it.

A GERMAN JOKE?

TO judge by the new German law under which Jewish children must in future be given only Jewish personal names, the Germans must be sharing what is called the "silly season" with us, probably universal in every country at the present time of year

What Germans are likely to call their children by such fantastic names as Awrum, Chananja, Itzig, Orew, or Schoachana? If you do not believe in these names, which you can hardly spell and seldom pronounce, I will quote the source of my information from "The Times"—

> ". . . of which Awrum, Chananja, Itzig, Orew, and Schoachana are a few examples. Their sisters, if their parents do desire, may be named Bilba, Frommet, Jachewad, Riwki, Scheindel, or Zorthel, among other equally 'non-Aryan' names, apart from the more usual Abigail, Judith, or Rachel."

It is quite possible that the Germans are pulling our legs, as their sense of humour is not the same as ours. It is certainly far funnier than anything which we have officially contributed to enliven the "silly season," and such jokes as we have made may not amuse anyone.

We should be grateful that nations, as well as individuals, have a different sense of humour, and even in Britain it is difficult to predict with precision what in either books, plays, or anecdotes will amuse the public. All that matters is that merriment should be encouraged, as what would life be without laughter! It heals acerbity and makes for good fellowship.

MY FRIEND THE POSTMAN

IT was not without emotion that I opened the annual flower-show in Innerleithen—now no longer a big village, but a prosperous town. There is little which you can say when you open a flower show, but I thought the exhibits—considering what a cruel year this has been for fruit and flowers—were of exceptional beauty, and I would have made a better speech had the show been anywhere except in the part of Scotland which I love best.

The only man whom I knew in the audience was Jimmie Weir, our old post-man, who had carried so many letters from all of us at Glen.

I presented him with a medal; but, before giving it to him, I told the audience that it was "a put-up job," as he was an old friend. In thanking me he said that most of the letters he brought to me were love-letters, which brought a cheer from the audience, and went on to say that, in spite of my having broken my nose out hunting, he liked a prominent nose.

He added, to my disconcertment, that I had been "thrown from my horse"

This is an expression which I have never understood, but it is always used when papers write of accidents in the hunting field. In spite of this slur upon my riding, I was delighted to present the post-man with his well-earned medal.

FINANCIAL REVIEW

CRISIS MARKETS AND SHARP DECLINES

ALMOST NO BUYING SUPPORT

LIVING ON HOPEFULNESS

LONDON, Friday Night.—In the past week the markets of the Stock Exchange have suffered further sharp depression as a result of the Continental political crisis. In the almost complete absence of support a certain amount of nervous selling has caused prices to be marked heavily down in practically all directions.

WHEN THE CLOUDS ROLL BY.

The following opinion is expressed by Messrs. Leopold, Joseph & Sons, bankers: "Altogether," they say, "recent experience suggests that if only the political shadow were lifted the stock markets might stage an all-round advance. As it is, however, no broad expansion of activity can be anticipated, and in the absence of any important change in the international situation the general trend must depend chiefly on the course of Wall Street.

"In the past month that market has given no decided lead, for although prices have recovered largely towards their best July levels—the Dow Jones industrial average actually touched a new peak at one time—it has shown no signs that a further major advance is in prospect.

"Now, however, the omens seem more favourable, though unless American business moves forward much more rapidly it is questionable whether any further rise in stock market prices could be justified as yet. During the next three days Wall Street may not be ebulliently optimistic, but strong buying will develop on the removal of the Central European trouble."

British Government stocks have in some cases dropped approximately a full point, and War Loan shows at 102¼, a loss of 11-16.

But as might have been expected, the heaviest declines, despite some improvement in the latter part of the week have been those registered in Foreign Government Bonds, and especially in those of the Central European countries. There has also been a very sharp setback in Chinese Bonds on the news from the Far East, which has eliminated the gains that occurred recently.

AMERICANS LOWER.

Transatlantic stocks have weakened sharply, not as a result of any less satisfactory news relative to trade conditions in the U.S.A., but because America is almost as disturbed as is Great Britain at the prospects of another world war developing.

In the Home Industrial department Iron and Steel shares have held up very well against the general depression, as while there was some disappointment with the reduction of 1½ per cent. in Staveley Coal and Iron Company's distribution at a total of 11 per cent., tax free, as against 12½ per cent., tax free, shareholders of Sheepbridge Coal and Iron Company were very pleased with the 2½ per cent. increase in the total distribution of 12½ per cent., tax free, as against 10 per cent., tax free, last year.

DULL WEEK FOR MINES.

The mining share market has presented a dull appearance during the past week despite a partial recovery on Wednesday. Lack of fresh buying and a little selling has resulted in a marking down of values all round. Western Holdings at one time touched 18s 6d, while Rand Lease, Anglo-American Corporations, Cons. Mines Selections, and West Witwatersrands all show appreciable losses. Marievales have also been offered.

West Africans have joined the downward movement, under the lead of Kwahus. Ashantis, however, have risen to 3½ on an excellent development cable.

The price of gold rose sharply, and on Friday was quoted 143s 4d, the highest price for over three years.

Coppers have fallen away on lower Wall Street advices and the fall of 10s per ton in the price of the metal on the week. Rhokanas and Rhodesian Selections have been rather severely lowered.

Of Diamonds, De Beers Deferred have given way.

OIL SHARES WEAK.

A weak tendency has prevailed in the Oil share market during the past week, and some appreciable declines have been recorded. Royal Dutch have been offered on Continental account, while Anglo-Iranians and Trinidad Leases have dropped away. Shells have also been out of favour, and Burmahs and Attocks have given way to 90s and 40s respectively.

RUBBER SHARE MARKET DULL.

There has not been a great deal of activity in the rubber share market during the past week, and values have been marked down on a little selling and lack of support. The leading issues are mostly several pence down. The price of the commodity has fluctuated rather widely, but is little changed at 7 15-16 per lb. on balance.

TEAS QUIET.

Quiet conditions have prevailed in the Tea share market, and share values have moved within narrow limits.

AIRCRAFT AWAIT REACTION.

Aircraft shares continue to disappoint and heavy selling has recently been encountered. Jobbers cannot give any reason for the decline in shares like Faireys and Hawker Siddeleys, the latter being no better than 24s 9d, whereas they were 5s higher not so long ago. This section should afford scope for enterprise, but as the public seem to be in no mood to take a hand in speculation or investment, quotations are sagging to lower levels. The fall in De Havillands to 44s 6d is attributed to the failure of the Albatross on its loading test, but this is not an insuperable difficulty. Nothing has occurred to shake faith in this industry, and when the international situation clears, probably next week, Aircrafts should show a fair recovery.

WHITWORTH AND MITCHELL.

The annual report of Whitworth and Mitchell, whose directors about a month ago announced that there was to be no dividend on the Ordinary shares for the year ended June 30, shows a heavy contraction in profit. The amount, struck as usual after meeting depreciation and directors' fees, is returned at £29,325, against £69,321 for the previous year. With £9,183 brought forward, there is £38,509 disposable with which the directors pay the dividends on the 6 per cent. Preference shares and provide £8,000 for taxation, leaving the small balance of £509 to go forward. For last year 6 per cent. was paid, and for the year before that 4½ per cent.

The review of the year by the new chairman, Mr. L. E. Walsh, states that the disappointing result of the year's trading is principally due to the exceptional fall which has taken place in cotton values, involving a serious writing down of stocks. The reduction in turnover amounts to just over 11 per cent., satisfactory considering the abnormally difficult conditions of trading during the year. The chairman thinks the future of the export trade must depend considerably on the result of Government action in obtaining satisfactory trade agreements. The home trade, which now comprises such a large proportion of the textile business generally, could certainly be helped by further protection from subsidised exports and the dumping of goods from countries with lower standards of living.

RISE.

Sheepbridge 39s 3d+1s 6d.

D. GESTETNER.

This company, which manufactures duplicating and office printing machines, is paying a final dividend of 25 per cent. on the Ordinary share capital of £403,417, making 40 per cent. for the year. Last year's dividend was also 40 per cent., but was payable on a smaller capital. A capital bonus of 25 per cent. was made in September, 1937. Last year the company achieved new high records and at the annual meeting the chairman stated that with reasonable trading conditions the results should be repeated this year.

ECONOMIC PROSPECTS.

The Midland Bank, in its current "Monthly Review," publishes its quarterly statistics of economic activity, and endeavours to extract from them some view of the outlook. Among the unfavourable factors are the shrinkage of overseas trade, especially in textiles, and the falling activity in iron and steel and other constructional industries. Among the more favourable factors are the check in the diminution in the volume of employment, the broadening recovery in the United States, and last, but assuredly not least, in the Midland Bank's view, a tendency towards expansion in the credit basis. The charts published show that the Bank of England has been adding to its holding of securities in the current year, and so has enlarged the cash basis available to the commercial banks. It is admitted that, so far, the expansion has not led to any proportionate increase in bank deposits, but the first step towards such an expansion has been taken, and the Midland Bank adds: "If this trend is maintained it seems likely that expansion will become more pronounced, through purchases of investments by the banks, assuming that a sufficiency of bills is made available."

GOOD PORTLAND CEMENT EARNINGS.

Distinctly satisfactory results are reported by the directors of the Ketton Portland Cement Company, a subsidiary of Thos. W. Ward, for the year ended June 30, 1938. The trading profit of £69,006 compares with £64,176 for previous year, while the net profit is £60,203, plus £17,361 brought in. The final dividend on the Ordy. shares is 8½ per cent., making for the year 15 per cent., a further increase of 2½ per cent. A dividend participation is paid on the 7½ per cent. Participating Preference shares. A transfer of £20,000 is again made to the depreciation reserve, raising the same to £120,000, and £20,832 is left to carry forward.

GOOD RUBBER RESULTS.

Having regard to the adverse conditions which have prevailed during the year ended March 31 last, the results now announced by the directors of Kota Tinggi (Johore) Rubber Company must be regarded as satisfactory. The balance available is £11,413, as compared with £14,707 a year ago, and the final dividend is 5 per cent., making 7 per cent. for the year, against 10 per cent., with little change in the carry-forward.

BOMBER AIRCRAFT FROM CANADA.

BRITISH CONTRACTS.

FIRMS' ARRANGEMENTS.

PLANS TO DEVELOP OUTPUT.

The following statement was issued by the British Air Mission to Canada in Ottawa on Friday night:—

"As a result of exhaustive discussions arrangements have been made by the United Kingdom Government, in conjunction with the principal firms in the industry in Canada, supported by prominent financial organisations, for the placing of contracts for bomber aircraft for the United Kingdom on a long-range programme of purchases.

"Under the arrangements the aircraft firms will augment their existing capacity to manufacture mainly aircraft components with two new central factories which they will build for this purpose—one at Montreal and one at Toronto.

"A central company is to be formed in association with these firms, which will operate the two main establishments and contract directly with the United Kingdom Government. Subject to approval of the arrangements by the United Kingdom Government, the new company will be finally constituted, and enter into contracts with that Government to cover the long-range purchase programme.

"The United Kingdom representatives are also discussing with the Canadian aircraft firms, subject to confirmation, arrangements for placing contracts for manufacture of other types of aircraft for the United Kingdom Government in the other centres, e.g., Vancouver and Fort William.

ADDITIONAL PLANT.

"Such arrangements, which would be supplementary to those already obtaining under which a number of Canadian firms manufacture aircraft of British types for the Canadian Government, would involve the erection of additional manufacturing plant by firms at these centres.

"These arrangements, as stipulated by the Canadian Government in accordance with usual practice of Governments in a like situation, will preclude any possibility of prejudicing that Government's existing or future contracts with Canadian manufacturers for supplying needs of Canadian military forces. It was also the desire of the Canadian Government that all United Kingdom Government's contracts, and all arrangements in that connection, should be made directly between the United Kingdom Government and Canadian firms. The United Kingdom Government, accordingly, have entire responsibility for placing of such contracts and all incidental arrangements. The Canadian Government have been duly informed of the progress made with the arrangement as here outlined."

Sir Kingsley Wood, M.P., Secretary of State for Air, commenting yesterday on the conclusion of the British Mission to Canada, said—

"The announcement officially issued by the British Air Mission to Canada is one of great moment in relation to our air defences.

"With the range which aircraft are now attaining, this development will augment our potential strength considerably.

CO-OPERATION IDEAL.

"The scheme is long range, but it is based on the ready co-operation of the Canadian aircraft industry and of important financial organisations. I have no doubt that when the scheme has been finally approved the same co-operation and help that the Mission have had in evolving it will assure its unqualified success in practice, and that progress will be expedited to the utmost extent.

"The British Mission, headed by Sir Hardman Lever, was a strong one, and I am sure everyone will agree that they have carried out their work successfully and expeditiously."

The Central News says that the Air Minister's reference to the range which aircraft are now attaining is taken to mean that the bombers will be sufficiently powerful to fly across the Atlantic, so that they could still be sent to augment our defence forces in the event of sea-borne traffic being interrupted.

The members of the British Mission are—Sir Hardman Lever, Marshal of the Royal Air Force; Sir Edward Ellington, Mr. F. Handley Page, and Mr. Albert Henry Self.

The announcement and departure of the British Mission to Canada in July, followed the dispatch on April 20, 1938, of a party of experts charged with certain exploratory inquiries in the United States and Canada. The members of this party were Mr. J. G. Weir, C.M.G., C.B.E.; Air Commodore A. T. Harris, O.B.E., A.F.C.; Commander C. John, R.N.; Squadron-Leader C. E. Horrex, A.F.C., and Mr. F. Rowarth.

TO KEEP LABOURERS ON THE LAND.

SUGGESTION AT COLERAINE

RENTS FOR COTTAGES.

At a meeting of Coleraine Rural Council to-day, Mr. Hugh Hezlett, J.P., presiding, the question of rents for the labourers' cottages now in the course of erection was discussed, and it was stated that it was probable that a flat rate would be charged.

Mr. Joseph Diamond said he felt there would be a difference. Where they got bona-fide agricultural labourers his contention was that these men were entitled to preferential treatment.

Mr. H. A. M'Ilrath, J.P., said if labourers in outlying districts were given preferential treatment it would have the effect of keeping them on the land. Otherwise they would be inclined to go nearer the towns, and would eventually be a loss to the farmer.

Mr. M'Ilrath, a former member of the Council, who was co-opted in room of the late Mr. George Kidd, J.P., was welcomed by the chairman.

PRINCE ARTHUR IS GRAVELY ILL.

"FAIRLY RESTFUL NIGHT."

Prince Arthur of Connaught, who is lying ill at his house in Belgrave Square, London, spent a fairly restful night.

A reporter was told at the house that there was nothing further to report on the Prince's health until specialists held a further consultation.

Yesterday a bulletin signed by Sir Russell Wilkinson, physician to Prince and Princess Arthur of Connaught, and Lord Dawson of Penn, Physician-in-ordinary to the King, stated that Prince Arthur was losing strength.

Prince Arthur, who is 55, has suffered from gastric trouble for two years. In July his health caused him to cancel all public engagements and early in the year he cancelled a trip to Egypt for the same reason.

For a time he was a patient at a London clinic.

SUDETEN MEETING WITH PRESIDENT.

PRAGUE PLAN DISCUSSION

WITH HENLEINIST LEADERS.

Dr. Benes, the Czecho-Slovak President, on Friday morning, received Herr Kundt and Dr. Sebekowsky, Parliamentary Leader and Propaganda Chief of the Sudeten German Party, states the "Daily Telegraph and Morning Post" Prague correspondent. A Henleinist communique describes the interview as being in continuation of the last meeting of the party's delegates with President Benes on Tuesday.

In political circles the interview is considered to have been, on the whole, satisfactory. The fact that it lasted for three hours is evidence that there was at least no downright rejection of the Government's proposals, and that therefore there must have been some kind of discussion of them.

Another indication that the interview was satisfactory may be found in the fact that it has been decided that the details of the Government proposals will not be published in a "proclamation" by President Benes or at present announced by the Government. There never was any intention in Prague of publishing the proposals at once except in the event of a complete breakdown.

For the Government to issue the details of the proposals officially would make further negotiations with the Henleinists almost impossible. The Sudeten leaders would almost certainly have found it necessary to reject them in their entirety.

MODIFICATION POSSIBLE.

As it is, there is still an opportunity for modifications, additions and alterations before any announcement is made. Presumably a formal decision by the Henlein Party to accept the Government's scheme as a basis for negotiations or to reject them outright cannot be taken until after the return of Herr Henlein from his visit to Herr Hitler. The fact that the Sudeten leaders did not await this before going to see Dr. Benes, and that they talked with him at such length, suggests that their present attitude is not wholly negative.

Their attitude was authorised by Thursday night's meeting of the Party Political Committee. Had this committee's decision been a complete rejection it is hardly likely that Friday's meeting would even have taken place.

PRIVATE CONVERSATIONS.

The wording of the communiques issued by the Government and the Henlein Party on the meeting made it clear that these were private conversations and must not be considered as official negotiations.

In the afternoon there was a meeting of the Parliamentary deputies of the Henlein Party, presided over by Herr Henlein's deputy, Herr Franck. In a communique issued subsequently it was declared that there was a unanimous approval for "the realisation of the programme of Conrad Henlein."

£175,000 FORTUNE.

RICH NEW YORK RECLUSE.

ONCE ENTERTAINED LINCOLN.

A representative of Messrs. Fisher & Fisher, solicitors, Newry, has had an interview with two American lawyers who are visiting Ireland and England in connection with the administration of the estate of the late Mrs. Ida E. Wood, a woman of Irish parentage, who died in New York in 1932 worth £175,000.

For over '0 years Mrs. Wood, who was 93 when she died, lived the life of a recluse in New York, apparently with little means. After her death, however, she was found to have 747,000 dollars in currency in the humble quarters she occupied. Having had unfortunate investment experiences, it appears, she converted all her property into cash during the slump in America some years ago.

She was the wife of Benjamin Wood, publisher of the old "New York Daily News," who died in 1900. At one time he was a leading figure in New York's social life.

Mrs. Wood danced with the Prince of Wales, who later became King Edward VII., and she had also the honour of entertaining President Lincoln.

She created the impression that her father was a Louisiana planter and that she was a daughter of South American aristocrats named Mayfield.

She applied the name of Mayfield to her mother, brothers, and sisters, but papers discovered among her belongings aroused suspicion, and the New York Courts found that she was, in fact, a daughter of Thomas Walsh and Anne Crawford, who left Ireland for the North of England to engage in the textile industry, and were married in Manchester. The family then emigrated to U.S.A. in the early 'forties.

Claiming a share in the old lady's fortune have been no fewer than 600 people, but this number has now been thinned down to a mere fifty, including a number of members of well-known South Down families, who are stated to be related to the late Mrs. Wood.

Amongst these are mentioned—Mr. F. J. O'Hare, Baymount, Rostrevor; Mr. Thomas Dowdall, JP., and Miss Imalda Dowdall, Dublin Road, Newry; Mr. Patrick M'Givern, Newry Street, Warrenpoint; Mrs. Mary Shanaghan, widow of the late Mr. Martin Shanaghan, a former chairman of Warrenpoint Urban District Council, and Miss Jane Magee, Philipstown House, Dundalk.

SECOND RUGBY TEST.

SOUTH AFRICA FAVOURITES.

FOUR ULSTERMEN IN BRITISH XV.

PORT ELIZABETH, Saturday.—A record crowd was expected for the second Rugby Test here to-day between the touring British XV. and South Africa. While the Port Elizabeth ground is not particularly large, 20,000 people can be squeezed in.

The injury to Gerry Brand, South Africa's great full back, has been a blow to Springbok followers, but, despite this, the home side was expected to win.

At first it was feared that Brand's playing days were ended. It is now learned that he may play again before the end of the season, providing his pulled leg muscle mends satisfactorily. In any event Rugger circles here consider that he will be in the Springbok team which meets the All-Blacks in 1940.

F. G. Turner (Western Province), who was originally chosen as wing three-quarter, filled Brand's place in to-day's Test, and J. Bester (Western Province) was brought in on the wing.

There were several changes in the British team. V. G. J. Jenkins, who injured a thigh muscle in the first Test, was replaced at full-back by C. F. Grieve; C. V. Boyle and B. E. Nicholson came into the threequarter line in place of E. Jones, who will take no further part in the tour, and D. J. Macrae, who burst a blood vessel a fortnight ago; at scrum half H. Tanner was preferred to J. L. Giles because of his longer pass; and among the forwards C. R. Graves and W. G. Howard dropped out and W. H. Travers and P. L. Duff came in.

The British players motored and golfed yesterday, while the South Africans rested. It was felt here that the British XV., which has had no practice since Wednesday, should have put in some time on the playing field before the match.

There was no sign of rain last night, and a strong wind promised a fast field.

Great Britain—C. F. Grieve (The Army and Scotland); E. J. Unwin (The Army and England), H. R. M'Kibbin (Queen's University and Ireland), B. E. Nicholson (Harlequins and England), C. V. Boyle (Dublin University and Ireland); F. J. Reynolds (Old Cranleighans and England), H. Tanner (Swansea and Wales); E. Morgan (Swansea and Wales), W. H. Travers (Newport and Wales), G. T. Dancer (Bedford), R. Alexander (Royal Ulster Constabulary, N.I.F.C., and Ireland), R. B. Mayne (Queen's University and Ireland), S. Walker (Instonians and Ireland) (captain), A. R. Taylor (Cross Keys and Wales), P. L. Duff (Glasgow Academicals and Scotland).

South Africa—F. G. Turner (Western Province); D. O. Williams (Western Province), P. De Wit (Western Province), G. P. Lochner (Western Province), J. Bester (Western Province); A. T. Harris (Transvaal), D. Craven (Northern Transvaal); M. M. Louw (Western Province), J. Lotz (Transvaal), S. C. Louw (Transvaal), B. Du Toit (Northern Transvaal), A. R. Sheriff (Northern Transvaal), B. FESTIVAL CRICKET.

FINGLETON BACK TO DUTY.

BARNETT RETAINS HIS FORM.

The Scarborough and Folkestone cricket festival matches began to-day, and the last of the County championship games, Gloucestershire v. Sussex, at Gloucester, which was Sinfield's benefit game.

Slow bowler and all-rounder, Sinfield is a native of Hertfordshire, learnt his cricket aboard the Mercury, was on the ground staff at Lord's, and assisted his native county. He has played for Gloucestershire since 1925. When he took his 1,000th wicket in first-class cricket, he joined W. G. Grace as the only other Gloucestershire player to make more than 10,000 runs and take 1,000 wickets.

In 13 years with Walter Hammond's team, Sinfield has scored 14,000 runs—16 centuries—with a highest score of 209 not out at Cardiff in 1935. He has taken over 1,000 wickets.

Sinfield achieved the "cricketer's double" in 1934 and last year. He was the first Gloucester man to do the "double" since Gilbert Jessop in 1900.

Sinfield's first Test was at Trent Bridge this summer. Before that his one taste of big cricket was when he turned out for the Players at Lord's.

GRANDSON OF ULSTER DEAN.

Mr. George F. Lefroy, of Pilton, Barnstaple, a well-known North Devon solicitor, whose death is announced, was a grandson of Very Rev. Jeffry Lefroy, Dean of Dromore, who died in 1885. The Lefroys are an old County Longford family, with a seat at Carrigglas Manor.

Dean Lefroy's eldest son was the late Canon F. A. Lefroy, of Gloucester, father of Mr. G. F. Lefroy, who served during the war as a captain in the Royal Field Artillery. His great-grandfather, Right Hon. T. L. Lefroy, was a Lord Chief Justice of Ireland.

CECIL EWING BEREAVED.

Mr. Thomas J. Ewing, proprietor of the Golf Links Hotel, Rosses Point, Sligo, who has died at the age of 58 at his home after a prolonged illness, was father of Mr. Cecil Ewing, international golfer, Walker Cup player, and runner-up in the British Amateur Open last May.

The late Mr. Ewing was one of the best-known and most popular men in the West. He was a keen golfer, and from scratch won practically all the trophies at the Co. Sligo Golf Club's tournaments. He was reckoned one of the best shots in the provinces.

FORMER ULSTER T.T.

CONTESTED IN ENGLISH MIDLANDS.

CARRIERE THE EARLY LEADER.

Four nations, Britain, France, Germany, and Italy battled for supremacy in the R.A.C. International Tourist Trophy Race at Donnington Park, near Derby, to-day.

There was a strong challenge of Continental aces.

Britain's faith was pinned to light cars and, with one exception, all the home cars were in the two smallest groups.

The only two women entrants, Miss Dorothy Stanley-Turner and Mrs. E. M. Wisdom, used the smallest car in the race, an M.G.

The T.T. race was on handicap lines, each group having to cover a different number of laps ranging from the 100 (or 312 miles) for the big cars to 87 for the babies.

In the class for cars between two and three litres, A. Delage was the sole competitor and had only to keep going to win the class prize of £200.

The team of Frazer-Nash B.M.W's were lighter than the weight-regulations for their class stipulated and they carried a quantity of lead in order to bring them up to the required weight.

The sky was overcast at the start and a quarter of an hour later there was a slight drizzle.

The Frazer-Nash B.M.W.'s which had to cover four laps less than Carriere were all travelling very fast, and there was a grand scrap between R. J. Seaman and B. "Bira" in two of these cars. Cornering was hectic as the machines strove to get inside their handicap times.

It was learned that mechanics had worked until the early hours of the morning fitting a new gearbox and back axle to one of the Fiats. Late on Friday evening it was found that the trouble had arsien in the transmission, and the new parts were taken from a saloon car.

P. Etancelin (Darracq) was quickly in trouble, losing his third gear within the first ten minutes. He kept on, however, in spite of the difficulty in changing down for the corners.

After a quarter of an hour the leaders on handicap were—1, Carriere; 2, Seaman; 3, L. Gerard (Delage) and A. F. P. Fane (Fraser-Nash B.M.W.); 5, B. "Bira" (Frazer-Nash B.M.W.), and 6, A. C. Lace (Darracq).

After half an hour Carriere was still in the lead with an average of over 70 m.p.h., Seaman was second, and L. Gerard (Riley) third.

"Bira" had now come up into fourth place, and Fane had dropped back into fifth place, while Lace held grimly to the sixth position.

In the next quarter of an hour there were changes among the first six, and Carriere, going faster than ever, still held first place. Gerard was now second and Seaman third.

Gordini (Simca Fiat), who had made a new class record for machines of the size of this car of 62.2 m.p.h., was in the sixth position. "Bira" and Lace were equal for the fourth place.

Marcus Chambers (H.R.G.) got into a wild skid at Melbourne Corner and went on to the grass. He quickly recovered and got on to the road again to carry on in the race.

Carriere, although going faster, was now in second place with an average of 70.88, and Seaman was third with an average of 68.02 m.p.h.

During the next few laps Gerard increased his average speed to 69.74 m.p.h. "Bira," who was lying fifth, had trouble with his gear-box, and when he stopped his place was taken by Etancelin, the French driver.
